Tuchun Li Shun A Suicide; New Peking Crisis!

AWFUL CONDITIONS IN FAMINE-STRICKEN AREA DESCRIBED BY WRITER

Terrible Suffering Of Millions Of Chinese Dying Of Hunger Is WitnessedByAmerican

By NATHANIEL PEFFER

Lin Ming Kuan, Chihli, Oct. 4.—I have just come by cart for two days 180 li across a country where the drought has been so severe that no crop was even sown last spring. The previous crop also had been a failure for the same reason. For a year then there has been little or no food raised—among a people dependent from day to day on what the soil has yielded for the day. This part of Southern Chihli is as sorely afflicted as any I have seen, as sorely afflicted as country can be.

Up to two weeks ago this was a parched desert. There had been no rain for nearly a year. Only the hardier weeds survived. Since then there have been several soaking rains. They have changed the whole aspect of the country, psychologically as well as physically. Before there had been the deepest of despondency, a foreboding of awful death. Now there is hope and the poorest peasant is cheered again. The fields again show green. In every corner and by every farmer who could raise a few strings of cash by the sale of his last remaining bits of clothes, his last few sticks of furniture, his children, even, to purchase seed, wheat has been planted, and it is coming up gloriously.

HARVEST IN JUNE

But it is a forlorn, long distant hope. The wheat will ripen for the harvest not earlier than June. For those who will be alive in June there will be plenty. The harrowing problem will be to live until June. Even those who are accounted rich by Chinese agricultural standards, those who own fifty or more mow of land, have to adulterate their bowls of grain porridge with thistle leaves, what is known as Ts'ur Ts'ai. The poorer, the great mass, have only ts'ur ts'ai. In a few weeks, when the frost comes, they will not have that. They will have only what the relief organisations now so painfully coming into operation will be able to give them. If those organisations give them nothing they will starve by the thousands. That is the famine problem in a sentence, here as everywhere.

From Tamingfu I started northwest toward the Peking-Hankow Railway. For the purpose of seeing the famine at its worst it was merely a random choice, for I was told that the two hsiens just to the south, Nanloahsien and Ch'ingfenghien, each with a population of around 400,000 were just as bad. In the hsien city of the former the pawnshops have been so crowded with people pawning the last of their resources that they have had to close late at night, leaving customers waiting outside the gates till sunrise.

SELL CHILDREN

A few li from Taming I came to Hwanglo, the first large village. It has a population of one hundred families. Thirty have left, some in one direction, some in another. Already half have come back. They have been unable to find work and begging was futile. This village is too poor for the majority to eat even k'ong, or chaff, which costs two or three coppers a catty. They have thistle, tree leaves and the meat of mules too old to be sold.

They have just sown their wheat. To do so twenty families or so had sold their children the week before. I talked to two men who were among the sellers. The buyers had come from Shansi, they said. One had sold a boy of eight for $4, another had sold a girl of ten for $5. One of the elders of the village, a man more than seventy and the head of a family of fourteen, who owned twenty mow of land and normally is well-to-do, took me to his home to show me how he lived. The house was almost bare of furniture, the courtyard was bare of everything except the usual accumulations of the courtyard of a Chinese house, two children were eating bowls of leaves in warm water

Mr. William Morris, The British American Tobacco Company.

Mr. G. H. Stitt, The Hongkong and Shanghai Bank.

Donations of food and clothing also will be received at the headquarters of the relief association at No. 22 The Bund, the former German Club.

U.S.S. HURON WITH ADMIRAL GLEAVES COMES UP RIVER

Vanguard Of American Fleet Here—Biggest Warship Ever Up Whangpoo

Admiral Albert Gleaves, commanding the American Asiatic squadron, arrived here yesterday on the U.S.S. Huron, which until recently was the U.S.S. South Dakota, and which is said to be the largest warship that has ever anchored before the city of Shanghai. The Huron came up the Whangpoo following the light cruisers Albany and New Orleans, which arrived the preceding day.

The vessels given are the vanguard of the American fleet that is to visit Shanghai and it was stated yesterday that Admiral Gleaves, who returns following a recent brief visit, intends to remain in Shanghai about two weeks. In this period a series of entertainments and social events is being arranged for officers and men of the fleet.

The vessels coming to Shanghai recently have been taking part in target practice at Chefoo and the U.S.S. Huron comes here after a recent run to Vladivostok whither the warship was ordered some weeks ago just as it was about to sail for Shanghai from Yokohama.

The re-naming of the flagship, which is a vessel of 14,000 tons, took place at Vladivostok and this was ordered when the keel was laid recently at Newport News, Virginia of a new American superdreadnaught that is to be named the South Dakota.

Following its achievement in negotiating the bend in the Whangpoo to come to Shanghai, the Huron with its draft of 26.4 feet came all the way to a point off the French Bund where the ship is now anchored.

YUNNANESE WIN TWO WEEKS BATTLE WITH SZECHUENESE

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Chengtu, September 27.—After two weeks' heavy fighting, in which the Yunnanese reached the city gates and shelled the city, the Szechuen troops, with assistance from General Liu Tsen-hou, inflicted a severe defeat on the Yunnanese who have now retreated to Tzechow.

The Szechuen troops had 3,000 wounded. General Liu Tsen-hou is now at Mienchow and General Hsiung Keh-wu at Tungchwan.

BUDDHISTS IN DEMONSTRATION AS CHRISTIANS CONDUCT RALLY

Thousands Of Children At Tokio Participate In Religious Festivals

CONVENTION IS SUCCESS

Cordial Welcome Is Given To Delegates Assembled For World Meeting

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, October 10 (delayed).—One of the most impressive and extraordinary sights ever witnessed in Tokio was seen this afternoon, when 12,000 Japanese Sunday school boys and girls, in gay kimonos—most of them tots whose ages ranged from four to 11—accompanied by thousands of their teachers and parents, and a band, walked in procession through the streets, singing and carrying emblematic banners of red, pink, yellow and blue. The route started at Hibiya Park and ended at the main gate of the Palace.

RALLY IN PARK

The procession followed a rally in Hibiya Park, attended by the delegates to the Convention. There was a profuse display of day fireworks and a balloon, shaped like an airship, hung over the park. The children sang hymns and enthusiastically cheered the foreign delegates.

Yesterday evening a concert was held in the Imperial Theater, where the stage was filled with a chorus of a thousand young Japanese men and women, and the band of the Imperial Navy.

An impressive program was gone through, and the Pageant Director, Mr. Augustine Smith, of Boston, received a magnificent tribute of flowers, which, he suggested, was symbolic of the very close friendship between America and Japan. There was a packed audience of a thousand, who warmly applauded.

BUDDHIST DEMONSTRATION

The Convention is proceeding successfully, and is being attended by many prominent Japanese. One of the outstanding features is the cordial reception and extended facilities which the foreign delegates are accorded by Japanese of all classes.

Simultaneously with the rally in Hibiya Park, there was a rally of 15,000 Buddhist children in Shiba Park, where songs and speeches were delivered. Baron Shibusawa and others walked in procession. Some of the delegates to the Sunday-school Convention attended the proceedings, and were given copies of a pamphlet on the Buddhist education of children.

Tokio, October 11.—Portraits of the Emperor and Empress by the Canadian artist, Mr. Forster, who is one of the delegates to the World's Sunday School Concention, were unveiled this morning in the Convention Hall.

It was a beautiful and unique ceremony and all the delegates joined in the singing of the Japanese National Anthem.

CHINESE AGAINST JOINT CONTROL OF RUSSIAN HOLDINGS

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, October 12, (filed 8:10 p.m.).—The Ministry of Foreign Affairs has definitely expressed its opposition to the proposal of the Diplomatic Corps to bring about a joint administration of the Russian concessions in Tientsin and Hankow.

This proposal was transmitted by the Spanish Minister, acting as Dean of the Diplomatic Corps following the meeting of that body last Saturday.

The Diplomatic Corps suggested to co-operative administration for these concessions and held the view that legal complications are certain to arise in connection with foreign interests unless this proposal is adopted.

The Diplomatic Corps also asked formal assurance that China's action was only temporary pending the recognition of a permanent Russian Government.

VILNA COMPLICATIONS

Action Conflicts With Word Given To Committee Of League Of Nations

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 11.—The French newspapers announce that the armistice between Poland and the Soviet Government has not yet been signed.

The secretariats of the two delegations have issued a communique, pointing out that difficulties have been encountered in the application of the text of the articles of the draft peace agreement.

TROUBLE AT VILNA

London, October 10.—It is reported that serious complications have arisen at Vilna. The Poles, it is stated, are making a determined attempt to occupy the Lithuanian capital, which action conflicts with Polish declarations to the League of Nations.

It is added that the Lithuanians are preparing a vigorous defense, and that the Government has gone to Kovno.

IRISH BOMBERS ATTACK TROOPS

Soldiers Are Dynamited As They Are Travelling In Motor Lorries

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 10.—Two further outrages are reported from Ireland today. In the first case, a military motor-lorry was proceeding to Castlerea station in county Roscommon, when it was blown up, and eight soldiers are missing. No further details have yet been received.

In the second affair, armed men attacked two military lorries, filled with soldiers, near Bandon, county Cork, last night. One officer was killed and three soldiers wounded. The civilian casualties are not known.

NEW PORTUGUESE CONSUL ARRIVES

Mr. Alfredo da Casanova Here To Succeed Consul-General Jorge R. D'Oliveira

Mr. Alfredo da Casanova, who is the newly appointed Portuguese Consul-General and successor to Mr. Jorge R. D'Oliveira, who returned to Lisbon some eight months ago, arrived in Shanghai and assumed his new duties yesterday. Mr. da Casanova comes from Singapore where he has been serving as Portuguese Consul-General. He was transferred from Singapore to this post and Mr. D'Oliveira has been appointed to fill the post of Consul-General at Singapore.

The new Portuguese Consul-General has had an extensive diplomatic career. He was Portuguese Consul-General at Madrid, Spain, for eleven years following which he became Portuguese Minister at Bankok, a post he held for two and a half years before he became Consul-General at Singapore.

Since Mr. D'Oliviera's departure from Shanghai Mr. A. M. da Silva, Portuguese Vice-Consul, has been acting Consul-General.

JAPANESE SHIP SINKS IN STORM

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, October 11.—The steamer Kisei Maru, from Otru to Osaka, foundered and sank as a result of the storm on Thursday.

The captain and crew of 22 are believed to have been lost.

On Saturday an engineer and five seamen left the steamer in a small boat in search of assistance as the ship was sinking. The boat capsised but three of the seamen succeeded in reaching the shore.

CHANG TSO-LIN IS REPORTED SEIZING CAPITAL; THIRD MONARCHICAL COUP?

-:- General Li Shun -:-

General Li was considered a most promising leader of the country, and had made his name known to all foreigners in China through his efforts to secure peace for the country and the consequent incurring of the displeasure of the Northern militarists. General Li was over fifty years old, and had had much military experience. His native place was Tientsin, Chihli. He attended the Pei Yang Military Academy and was a pupil of the present President, Hsu Shih-chang. After his graduation General Li received his first military appointment as a captain in the "Huai Chun" troops, which were being trained by Yuan Shih-k'ai, the late President, at Shiao Chan.

On account of his efficiency and ability, General Li secured rapid promotions. After a short time he became a brigade commander in the Sixth Division of the New Army. In 1910 he was further promoted to be chief commander of the Division. When the revolution in 1911 broke out, he rendered no small service to the republican army. In July of 1913 General Li Shun was appointed Acting Defence Commissioner of Kiukiang, Kiangsi. In August he was concurrently appointed to take temporary charge of the office of Chief Civil Commissioner of the same province. In September General Li was appointed Acting Tutuh of Kiangsi.

In July of 1914 General Li was appointed Chang Wu Chiang Chun to supervise the military affairs of Kiangsi province. In 1915 the rank of Lieutenant General and the brevet rank of General were conferred upon him for his merits.

In June of 1916 General Li was appointed tuchun or military governor of Kiangsi. During his stay in that province he was popular with the people. In August, 1917, he was transferred to Nanking as tuchun of Kiangsu to succeed General Feng Kuo-chang, Vice-President of the Republic, who went to Peking to become President. General Li was also director-general of the bureau for the promotion of commerce at Nanking.

In 1918 General Li made several attempts to settle political differences between the North and South with the support of the military governors of Kiangsi and Hupeh, but all these attempts failed on account of the opposition of the other military governors. General Li had been partly responsible for the calling of the peace conference at Shanghai early in 1919 when Mr. Tang Shao-yi and Mr. Chu Chi-chien acted a chief delegates for the opposing factions. He then served as a medium for official communications between the Southern and Northern governments. At first it was decided to hold the conference at Nanking, Shanghai, however, was decided upon for the holding of the conference at the request of the South. General Li was progressive, democratic and learned.

When General Wang I-tang was outlawed, General Li succeeded him as Chief North delegate at the Internal Peace Conference early this Summer.

Cox Formally Accepts League Of Nations As Leading Campaign Issue

(Reuter's Service)

New York, October 8 (delayed).—Speaking at Nashville, Tenn., Governor Cox formally accepted the League of Nations as the issue of the presidential campaign.

Referring to Senator Harding's denunciation of the present League, he said:

"Now that he is against the League, I am for it."

He further declared that as soon as possible after March 4, if elected, he with the Senate, would consider the Peace Treaty, and the question of reservations. Any of these which are helpful would be accepted, and the Treaty ratified.

MUST PLAY OWN PART

Des Moines, October 8 (delayed).—Senator Harding, in the course of a speech here today, declared that the United States was not being selfish or aloof, but would never allow a council of foreign Powers at Geneva to dictate to her. America wanted to play her own part in the world's affairs.

Senator Harding declared himself in favor of the rejection of the Covenant written at Versailles, and again declared for an "association of nations" instead of the League of Nations.

TO CONSULT SENATE

He said that as soon as possible after he was elected, he would consult the best minds in the United States, especially the Senate, in regard to an association of nations for the promotion of international peace, but one which should definitely safeguard American sovereignty and recognise America's ultimate and unmortgaged freedom of action.

Sacrifice For Nation Says Li; Half Of His Fortune For Country

Letters Of Yangtsze Chieftain Set Aside 25 Percent Of Property To Education And Equal Amount Towards Famine Relief Fund

Gen. Li Shun, Tuchun of Ki angsu Province, and recently appointed Inspector General of Kiangsu, Kiangsi and Anhui committed suicide yesterday, at Nanking. He stated in three letters that he was heartbroken over his inability to do the things he wished to do for the saving of China. There were conditions over which he had no control, these particularly at Peking.

At the same time reports were circulated in Shanghai to the effect that Chang Tso-lin, the Tuchun of Fengtien at Mukden, had seized power in Peking and declared a Monarchy in place of the Republic. These reports were unconfirmed at a late hour because the political telegraph wires out of Peking were not working.

Another report was that Tsao Kun, Tuchun of Chihli Province, had fled south from Tientsin and was supposed to be making his way to Nanking or Shanghai. There was no report concerning Wu Pei-fu, the brilliant aide of Tsao Kun.

Read in connection with the suicide of Li Shun these reports take on a good deal of color. In other words another coup d'etat is being consummated, one that Li Shun was unable to prevent.

At 2:30 this morning, (Oct. 13) the following wire was received from our own correspondent in Peking:

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, October 12, (filed 8:30 p.m.).—The official report of the death of General Li Shun, Tuchun of Kiangsu, caused a flurry in the Capital when it reached here this afternoon.

Li Shun's death is expected to cause an upset of the political balance and to have far-reaching effects upon the present political situation.

The general position is this: Tuan, late chief of the Anfu Party, was upset by the combination of Tsao Kun, Wu Pei-fu and Chang Tso-lin. Of these four, Tuan and Chang Tso-lin had been foremost in carrying out the wishes of the Japanese. Chang Tso-lin by joining the Chihli faction upset Tuan, and since then, according to various reports has been playing a lone hand with the Japanese. And the Japanese Government wants a Monarchy in China.

If therefore Tsao Kun has jumped out towards the south, he probably is working with Wu Pei-fu and some of the more important southern leaders to upset the monarchical movement instituted by Chang Tso-lin.

In any event there is a new deal based on the suicide of Li Shun who was the most important Tuchun in the Yangtsze Valley. Perhaps if Chang Tso-lin is upset now, as Chang Hsun, his old monarchical satellite was upset when he tried to restore the Manchus, the Japanese influence in Peking may be permanently destroyed.

All this, of course, is based on the suicide of Li Shun, which has been confirmed to THE CHINA PRESS in a personal telegram from his foreign secretary.

The political situation in China is more tense than it was at the time that Yuan Shih-kai attempted to enthrone himself, and failed through the loyalty of Tsai Ao to the Republic.

WILL IS FOUND IN BED

General Li Shun committed suicide at his Nanking yamen by shooting himself with a Browning automatic at 4 o'clock yesterday morning.

The bullet pierced the left side of the abdomen and landed in the stomach. His will, written in his own handwriting in the form of three letters, was later found in the bedding.

Madame Li Wang Sz, the Tuchun's wife, was awakened by the report of the shot. She thought he was suffering from an apoplectic fit.

The yamen's official physician was then called. The wound was soon located and a search in the bedding soon disclosed the letters, which were addressed respectively to the Central Government, Mr. Chi Shi-yuen, his aide-de-camp and to his family.

CONTENTS SIMILAR

The contents of the letters were similar in nature. After describing in length the numerous difficulties and obstructions which are being created by the so-called leaders among the Northern as well as Southern militarists, General Li said that he was absolutely helpless in his attempt to save the nation. He would therefore sacrifice his own life as a penalty for his incapability.

Tuchun Li asked the Central Government to appoint a more

Chang Tso-lin Sends Two Brigades To Aid Japanese Near Chientao

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Oct. 10 (delayed).—The Minister of War told a deputation of the Kenkei-kai that the marauders at Chientao number 1,500 men with rifles, three guns and some machine-guns. The population of Chientao is some 300,000, including 2,000 Japanese, the remainder consisting of Chinese and Koreans.

He added that Japan had formally notified China of the movement of Japanese troops for self-defence. Gen. Chang Tso-lin had ordered two Chinese brigades to co-operate with the Japanese.

Gen. Chang had even declared his readiness to proceed to that region himself, if necessary, but the minister was of opinion that the Japanese troops can restore order.

ASSASSINS SLAY ADMIRAL'S WIFE AND HER MAID

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 10.—It is reported from Weimar that two masked men yesterday afternoon broke into the house of Admiral Scheer, who held the Chief Command of the High Sea Fleet during part of the war, and assassinated the Admiral's wife and maid, while they seriously wounded his eighteen-year-old daughter.

One of the murderers, an artist named Buechner, committed suicide, and the other fled.

The Admiral was asleep in an upper chamber when the murders occurred.

The motive of the crime has not yet been discovered, as there was no theft of property.

Lyautey Is Given Approval Of Alfonso

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 11.—The King of Spain has sent the following telegram to General Lyautey:

"I hasten to send to you, my dear General, as well as to your brilliant troops, my sincere congratulations on the occupation of Wezzan."

capable man to succeed him as the Inspector-General of Kiangsu, Kiangsi and Anhui and recommended General Chi Shi-yuen, his aide de camp, to become Tuchun of Kiangsu.

AIDS FAMINE RELIEF

As to his personal property, General Li allots 25 percent of it for educational purposes, a similar percentage for the famine relief work in North China and the remainder to members of his family.

To the four concubines, he gave $2,000 each and the freedom to remarry at once.

The three letters were addressed to the Central Government, General Chi, who has been acting for him during his leave of absence and his family.

General Li also left telegrams addressed to Generals Tsao Kun, Chang Tso-lin and Lu Yung-hsiang.

The text of the letters as well as the telegrams are being published by the Nanking police authorities for distribution.

The death of General Li Shun exposes the province to a fight between the various military cliques and among the people in Peking.

General Li had been an out and out Chihli-ist throughout his life and has been associated with the late acting President Feng Kuo-chang most closely.

Never before since the establishment of the Republic has this province been left without a strong military executive, as it will be remembered that General Li came from his Kiangsi post when General Feng went up to Peking to assume the acting presidency.

The Chihli Party will naturally favor their henchman, General Chi Shih-yuen, his a.d.c., who has been acting in his place during the 20-day leave granted by the central government. But there are lots of other political factors which must come into consideration.

HANGKOW MAN DEAN

General Wang Chuan-yuen of Hankow will be left now as the dean of the Yangtsze Tuchun's Alliance. It is only natural that he will not allow any other except his own man to be placed in this important post. The appointment of Chi Shih-yuen is not acceptable to him. The most important factor which will decide the appointment, of course, will be the Fengtien war lord Chang Tso-lin who has been attempting since his conquest over the Anfuites, to give the monarchist Chang Hsun an important job. He will see here his opportunity. The opposition to such a proposal by the people in Kiangsu will be tremendous.

Popular opinion will favor the abolition of the Tuchunship in this province which has been so ardently advocated by the leading commercial, educational and social institutions, but in the absence of a strong civil government the proposal will meet with opposition in Peking.

ROW OVER OFFICE

General Li lost a great deal of his popularity in the last days through his attempt to nominate his own man for the civil governorship. He wanted Mr. Wang Hu his adopted son, to be placed in that post. Wang is not acceptable to the people. The people want a Kiangsu man to be their civil governor. They have even gone so far as to nominate Mr. Chang Cha, the brother of Mr. Chang Chien the industrial magnate of Nantungchow for the post. It is doubtful whether Chang Cha is prepared to accept the nomination, in view of the chaotic state of affairs left behind by the militarists in the province.

The division, brigade and regiment commanders will all have to be satisfied before Chang can assume the supreme power in the province.

Li's rival, the military governor of Chekiang, General Lu Yung-hsiang, will also put up a desperate fight to secure this post for his own man.

BATTLE IS AVERTED

Shanghai residents will recall the exciting events which occurred along the Shanghai-Hangchow-Ningpo line during the Chihli-Anfu fight. If it had not been for the possibility of foreign intervention a real battle would have been fought right at the doors of Shanghai.

But today Li has passed away, this particular rivalry has ceased. General Lu and his lieutenant in Shanghai, Major General Ho Fung-ling, will seek to control this province. Already a portion of the province has gone over to their side; namely, the special military district of Sungkiang and Shanghai, geographically a Kiangsu district but military a Chekiang dependency.

General Lu now may seize his chance of extending his sphere of influence. It will be his aim to place either General Ho or General Chen Lu-sang, commander of the 4th Division of Chekiang, in this post.

It is expected that the Cabinet will eliminate much of it, and only retain what is absolutely necessary.

Italian Consulate Alleges Lu Wanted Arms For Anfuites

Important developments are expected in the dispute between General Lu Yung-hsiang, the Chekiang Tuchun, and the local Italian Consulate-General over the alleged sale by the Italians of arms kept on the Italian submarine chasers in Shanghai.

The local Consulate, it is understood, has issued a communication, alleging that General Lu was seeking these arms himself during the Chihli-Anfu conflict and was displeased when he failed to get them. The accusation, it was pointed out, was therefore made.

The communication is issued in reponse to Lu's allegation of the open sale of Italian arms in Shanghai which he made in a letter addressed to the Doyen of the Diplomatic Corps recently.

The Local Consulate, it is said, has evidence to show that General Lu through his agents in Shanghai tried hard during the Chihli-Anfu conflict to obtain the munitions from the chasers for his own use.

It will be remembered that the tension between Kiangsu and Chekiang was high when the conflict was on. General Li of Kiangsu was a Chihli man, while General Lu was a desciple of Marshall Tuan Chih-jui.

"That's a nice property of Smiths! It's worth something today!"

"I wonder what he paid for it 10 years ago—and what it is worth today?"

The answer to those questions is the answer to the question: "Is REAL ESTATE A GOOD, SAFE INVESTMENT?"

There is every reason to suppose that the same appreciation of land values which has taken place during the last decade will take place in the next.

Awful Conditions In Famine-Stricken Area Described By Writer

and the pulpy mass compounded of wild things that goes for bread. He himself did not eat food so good, he said. That was for children. Allowance could still be made also for a deal of exaggeration, but a wide allowance could still be made and leave an indescribable fund of misery.

LOSING LAND

That night I stayed at the village of Chang Chia Chuang. It was one of the dramatic episodes of my journey. After I had eaten the tinned evening meal under a battered and evil smelling lamp in the apartment de luxe of the Inn of Heavenly Peace—also battered and evil smelling—there gathered around me a circle of the elders of the village. On the outskirts stretching out of the door into the courtyard with the carts and the mules were the inevitable small boys instinctively drawn to some center of new excitement.

For spokesmen there was Chang Chun-shu, ti feng or village headman. As the name of the village indicates it is the habitation of the clan of Chang. The ti feng was the richest man of the village, owning more than a Ch'ing, a hundred mow. Out of his 130 mow he had not had an ounce of grain for the year. He himself was not so badly put, he admitted. He had sold half his land and was living on the returns, selling it a little at a time and at an average price of five dollars a mow, the price in average years being around forty dollars. The buyers are rich farmers and profiteers from the towns. He was not so badly put, but at that he and the three generations of Changs in his household were living on a restricted diete, for they foresaw the hard winter months coming.

In that village, though, there were only three families similarly well off. The other fifty families more less, about thirty having emigrated, had no land to sell, or not enough to come to more than a few weeks' food, which had already been consumed. They were living therefore on ts'ur ts'ai, one meal a day for the farsighted, two for the more prodigal or those who had already resigned themselves to the inevitable and were living well while they might.

TEAR DOWN HOUSES

I asked him whether all the farmers in his village had sown winter wheat. They had. He called three men out of the circle. All had torn down part of their houses to sell the material for the price of seed. Others, he said, had pawned their clothes, at three percent interest a month. They had not sold their children. There was no market. They were willing to sell; not for the few dollars but in the hope that the buyer would be able to feed them.

Another of the Changs, a more pathetic one, told me an even better story. His people had been in that village for nineteen generations. He was 74 years old—the head in this generation. They were poor now as always; they owned but ten mow of land. There are nineteen of them under his roof now; three had died in the last eight weeks, of hunger, he said, but from what he told me I know it to be cholera, or a near-cholera super-induced by underfeeding. The house of Chang was about to be scattered. They had come now to the point where they could eat weeds no longer. He himself was to remain behind. He was too old to endure the rigors of the road, and somebody had to remain to watch the home and little plot of land. They were going next week; where they had not decided. And he fell to his knees and sobbed. I give all due to the histrionic traits in Chinese race character, but it is a situation that needs no dissimulation, even subconsciously.

EARLY MORNING FLIGHT

After the candle had burned low and all but faces had blended into the shadows of the mud walls the group dispersed. As I was getting into bed the innkeeper came to whisper to my boy that there had been a consultation outside and the next morning as I was about to leave the whole village was to come and beseech help; they had concluded I had arrived for the purpose of distributing relief. They were all to kneel before my cart and kotow till I gave help, not letting me go till I handed to each his allowance. After consultation on my own part, I decided to get up at four and take flight. When the sun rose I was ten li out of the village. What happened there I never expect to know.

That was not the only experience of its kind. The next night at Li Ling Pu I shared the inn with four families, all related, who had left their native places and were making for the railroad. There were a little more than twenty, ranging in age from six months to sixty years. In the morning as I made ready to go they advanced in a body, dropped to their knees before me and crooned their prayer for help. They had only four strings of cash left in money and in goods only what was piled on two wheelbarrows along with women and children. I gave them something and left speedily.

MANY EMIGRANTS

It is a precarious venture, giving help indiscriminately now. For let the word but go abroad that a foreign Lord Bountiful was in the countryside and that foreigner—a newspaperman, God wot, and not bountiful—would have to dig in for a prolonged siege. Were this a personal chronicle, incidents could be cited as evidence.

As one goes further to the northwest one finds the proportion of emigrants steadily growing. In some villages I found one-third had left, and of these one-third had returned, now utterly without hope. And of course as they go they part with their children one by one. It is among refugees and not among those that stay at home that there has been the largest sale of children.

At Hsiao Ts'un, further on, I found other instances of homes being torn down to buy seed for planting as well as food. In such cases two families are crowding into one home and sharing the proceeds of the sale of the material from the other home. In this particular village two-thirds of the population had gone. The other third was down to the last extremity.

The center of social life here is the village temple, now bereft of priests, who have left for fatter pastures. As I talked to a small group here I heard loud wailing in a lane at my left. An old man had died during the night. Presumably of cholera, but he had lived on thistles for weeks.

BANDS OF ROBBERS

It is in this region one hears evidence of a third blight. Famine, cholera—there is yet a third: bandits. I was warned by one innkeeper, the one at whose place the refugees begged alms, to hide my money. A band of fifty robbers was camped twenty li east of the village, he said. They had stayed in his inn a week before. They made nightly raids, carrying away the well-to-do villagers for ransom, and, if there were none such, then taking anything else of value.

And this less than twenty-five miles from the railway, seven hours by train from Paotingfu where Tsao Kun, governor of the province, swaggers with untold numbers of troops, twelve hours by train from Peking, capital of the Republic, where other generals swagger with more multitudes of troops. And less than twenty-five miles away on the railway trainloads of troops and military equipment sweep by every hour and even passenger trains are made uninhabitable by swarms of the filthy, noisome, bullying nuisances that only a Chinese soldier can be. And there are not trains enough to carry grain to where millions are foodless!

AWFUL DESOLATION

As I go through my notes I find endless entries, all to the same general effect. Refugees, thistle and weed as diet, cholera and ravagings by bandits, selling of children, sacrifice of land for a song if there are buyers at all, pawning of everything pawnable, hunger, suffering, the prospect of death—the draggings from the deeps of an awful desolation. Repetition can give no emphasis. No emphasis is needed.

As one gets to within thirty-five li from the railway there is considerable improvement. This is a market for garlic, which grows in large quantities just to the north. And along the railway there are some wells and there has been some crop, including cotton. But it is good only by comparison. At best there has been only fifty percent of a crop. The surest index to sore straits even here is the large number of refugees. Such evidence is plain to the eye.

Every train that passes carries two or three flat cars, one grade in comfort below the cars for cattle and horses, on which are crowded as tight as humans can crowd refugees by the hundred, men, women, children, bedding and furniture all piled indiscriminately. And it is commentary of the pathos and the hopelessness of it all that as many are going in one direction as in another. Those in the south go north in the vain expectation of finding temporary homes, those in the north go south. Both will have to return to their own homes or starve along the way. Probably they will do both, and possibly starve in the end in any case.

NANKING RELIEF BODY HEARS SPEECH OF DR. WANG

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanking, Oct. 11.—Some days ago, the local church council started and organised a "Famine Relief Association." This afternoon the first meeting was held at the City Y.M.C.A. at Hwa Peh-llo. The meeting was presided over by the Hon. S. T. Wen, Customs Commissioner at Nanking.

Mr. Wen gave a very good introductory address. Mr. John Davis, American Consul here, gave an address on "U.S. contribution to the China Famine Association." Mr. Davis said:

"The eyes of the whole world are now on China. It is now a splendid opportunity for the Chinese to show their ability by coping with the famine.

After Mr. Davis' address, Mr Li Ru-chen, representing Gen. Li Shun, gave a short speech on "Conscience and contribution to the Famine Relief Association."

Then Dr. C. T. Wang rose and said in part that contributions to the famine do not depend on mouth, but on action—a quick action. He said the cause of famine was due to lack of scientific knowledge in China. Anyhow, famine now calls for immediate help.

"Work must be done by all, not by few," said the peace delegate. "We Chinese have proved our enthusiasm in public activities like in time of Red Cross association, the Chinese people subscribed over $200,000 and in time of Liberty Loans over $1,200,000."

"Spirit of sacrifice is important now," continued the peace delegate. "We must save our unnecessary expenses like official feasts and luxuries. We need also co-operation and unity—co-operation between foreigners and Chinese officials and business men."

At last, Dr. Wang pointed out that why we give is not for the reward we want to gain, but for the duty and obligation of every citizen. Failing these, we shall not be qualified to be a citizen in a Republic.

Upon the completion of the program, the chairman reported that the students of the Department of Missionary Training of the University of Nanking have already contributed $1,000 to the association. Then came the election for the officers of the association. The Band played as all went out. The meeting adjourned at 5:30.

AMERICAN LEAGUE OF NATIONS IS UNDER ATTACK

Danger Of Imperialism Seen By Argentine Lawyer In Monroe Doctrine

(Reuter's Service)

New York, September 17 (by mail).—The Associated Press correspondent at Buenos Aires writes:

Dr. Lucio M. Moreno Quintana, an Argentine lawyer and a grandson of a former President of Argentina in an address recently before the law students of the University of Buenos Aires, attacked the proposal made by President Brum of Uruguay last April for the formation of an "American League."

FEARS IMPERIALISM

President Brum's idea that the league should be based on a declaration by all Latin-American countries, similar to the Monroe Doctrine, which would thus put them on a footing of equality with the United States in maintaining that doctrine, was asserted by Dr. Quintana to be a dangerous one for Latin-America. He told the students that the danger lay in "North American imperialism" for the Monroe doctrine was an imperialistic doctrine, solely intended to maintain North American hegemony over the rest of the Continent.

UNITE COMMON INTERESTS

Dr. Quintana contended that the safety of Latin-American countries lay in the formation of a league exclusively among themselves "with the end of uniting their common interests and presenting a defensive bloc against North American imperialism and against any European pretensions," though he believed that the latter would be very remote.

"The Monroe doctrine," he continued, "has served as an admirable instrument for the United States to separate Europe from America and to establish its hegemony over the latter."

Japanese Answer Australia Charge

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, October 11.—The following statement is issued by the Foreign Office today:

"A recent Melbourne despatch states that the number of Japanese yearly entering Australian territory illegally is causing uneasiness in Northern Australia on account of their increased participation in the pearling industry.

"There is apparently some misunderstanding by the newspapers. Japanese crews for Northern Australia until last year were hired at Singapore and Hongkong by Australians of their own accord. Since then the scarcity of crews forced Australian companies to apply for permission to hire crews in Japan. The request was granted under certain necessary conditions.

"As a result the Japanese subjects, thus hired, go to Thursday Island, hence there is no need to resort to clandestine means to enter Australian territory."

Brazil's Oil Wells To Be Investigated

(Reuter's Service)

New York, September 12. (by mail).—The Rio de Janeiro correspondent of the Associated Press writes:

Investigation of Brazil's oil resources and their development either directly by the Federal Government or by private companies under strict supervision, is ordered in a Bill, introduced in the Chamber of Deputies.

The measure provides that oil bearing lands of proved capacity may be expropriated by the Government as a matter of public utility and developed with a view to supplying the country's own needs, any excess above such needs being exportable.

Wireless 'Phones New York Crowds Heard Will Be Used In Y.M.C.A. Lecture Series

Equipment Used In Victory Way Celebration To Be Exhibited In Action And Explained By Prof. C. H. Robertson

A wholly novel and interesting series of lectures with practical demonstrations of the use of the wireless telephone will be given at the Y.M.C.A. this month beginning October 18 by Prof. C. H. Robertson, who is making a lecture tour under Y.M.C.A. auspices with complete equipment consisting of two wireless telephone stations.

These two stations just brought to Shanghai have an interesting history. They represent one of the latest results of war time development in the great laboratories of the Western Electric Company in New York. These particular stations were constructed for the Victory Way Celebration in New York City.

MESSAGE TO THRONGS

From one installed in an airplane high in the air was sent messages to the others on the city streets. From the receiving station the message went out by wires to loud speaking 'phones suspended over the streets so thousands of thousands of people could hear the messages.

Through the special co-operation of Dr. Frank B. Jewett, Chief Research Engineer of the Western Electric Co. and Dr. P. I. Wald, his associate at Peking, these stations were secured by Prof. C. H. Robertson when recently in New York.

They have now been especially fitted at the "Y" lecture department laboratory in Shanghai for extended lecture trips in China. The first campaign is now on at Hangchow where on Wednesday last Prof. Robertson was the special guest of Tuchun Lu Yuan-Hsiang. The first lectures were in the governor's yamen for the officials of Hangchow and nearby cities. During the week following many thousands of people have been intensely interested in this fascinating subject.

SCHEDULE FOR SHANGHAI

Through the courtesy of the National Committee Lecture Department, the Shanghai Y.M.C.A. is able to extend to the people of Shanghai an opportunity to see and hear the wireless telephone.

Admission to all lectures will be by ticket. Most of the lectures will be given in Chinese but a special lecture in English for the foreign community will be given under the auspices of the Union Church Rotary and Social Guild on Friday evening, October 29.

During the week of October 18-23, the lecture will be given twice each day. The opening lectures will be given for editors, Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors, leading educators and officials on Monday, October 16 at 4 p.m.

PROGRAM IS GIVEN

The program for the remainder of the week will be as follows:

Monday, October 18, 8 p.m., Y.M.C.A. Evening School.

Tuesday, October 19, 3 p.m., Middle Schools of Shanghai, Senior students and faculty. 8 p.m., Railway, Post Office, Telegraph, Steamship and Customs employes.

Wednesday, October 20, 3 p.m. Municipal Schools, 8 p.m., General Membership, Bible School, Sustaining Members, Supporters and Business Men's Club.

Thursday, October 21, 1. p.m. Rotary Club, 3 p.m., Middle Schools of Shanghai, Senior Students and Faculty, 8 p.m., Street Unions.

Saturday, October 23, 10 a.m. Day Schools in Neighborhood of Y.M.C.A., 3 p.m., Members of Y.W.C.A., 8 p.m., Men in Industry.

Diamond Salesman Robbed At Buffalo

(Reuter's Service)

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 10.—A most daring hold-up and diamond robbery has occurred at Buffalo.

Two men jumped out of a taxicab and attacked a diamond salesman, named Laventhal, whom they had followed from Cleveland, knocking him down and rendering him senseless with the butts of revolvers.

They then made off with a suitcase, containing diamonds worth $220,000.

CONDUCTED BY DUDLEY BURROWS

"EXTRY! AWFUL MURDER!" INDIANS MASSACRE ROBINS IN FIFTH GAME OF SERIES

Details Of Cleveland's Terrible Slaughter Of Brooklynites In Critical Contest For World's Baseball Championship Reach Shanghai

By Dudle Burrows

(Amplified from U. S. Naval Radio Despatch)

Well, well, well!

Here's something like the real thing!

Not the result of the sixth World's Series game, to be sure, but the next best thing to it—a detailed score of the fifth game, demonstrating exactly how the Cleveland Indians tomahawked, scalped and generally man-handled the Brooklyn Trolley Dodgers, after the latter had taken two out of the first three games of the aforesaid "serious."

Gosh, what a slaughter it must have been! And to think that "Burly" Grimes, the Dodgers' pitching ace, was doing the twirling honors for Wilbur Robinson's team while Jim Bagby, despised of the wiseacres because he lost his first start, was on the mound for the Speakerites!

Contrary to the methods employed by their red-skinned namesakes, against early American pioneers, the Indians apparently wasted no time in attacking Fort Brooklyn. Repulsing the initial attack of General Robinson's men, the cohorts of Rain-in-the-Face Speaker, in their half, launched a veritable avalanche of deadly base-hits at the Brooklyn "pale-faces," which netted them four big counters in the very first chukker.

"Jamieson singled; Wambsganns singled; Speaker bunted safely; Smith smashed a home-run over the right-field fence, scoring them all!"

Read 'em and weep Brooklyn fans and fanettes!

And the fourth inning was like unto the first:

"Johnson singled; . . . . . O'Neill walked; . . . . . Bagby homerunned, scoring Johnson, O'Neill and himself!"

That's what one would call larruping the horsehide pill when the larruping was good, wouldn't one?

"I'll say so!

WHAT OF BROOKLYN?

Meanwhile, what of Brooklyn? "Aye," the echo answers, "what of Brooklyn?"

Well, mates, it's just this way: Brooklyn, it seems, was in there trying all the while, but just didn't appear to get the idea of when to hit, or when to run, or when to do anything that would put something else besides goose-eggs in the official scorer's note-book.

Just when they would get a nice little batting rally on its way to fame, up would jump some ferocious-looking Redskins out of the bushes and scare that poor little rally to death, or accomplish its demise in some other fiendish manner!

THAT TRIPPLE PLAY

Take that triple play against the Robins in the fifth—the first of those nefarious things, if memory serves, to be pulled in a world-series contest. The poor little robin-redbreasts were probably just beginning to believe these Cleveland cut-ups were nothing but a bunch of edible-earthworms, after all.

With two men on, nobody out and a powerful batsman facing poor 01' Doc' Bagley, Brooklyn was evidently thinking that "mebbe"—just mebbe"—she could get about eight of those seven runs back, or "mebbe" a few more!

And then ping!—ping-ping-ping! ping-ping-ping-ping! Good bye, boys, we're through! "Wambsganns" to Gardner to Johnson—and down went the Robins, with an Indian arrow in each little red breast!

SMITH LEAD ATTACK

Elmer Smith, Cleveland right-fielder, was the bright and shining marksman of the day. In three times up the best Elmer could do was a single, a triple and that home-wrecking home-run—not so fearful bad, considering that Elmer is still more or less of a youngster!

Anyhow, there's the story: The gruesome details of the massacre are as follows:

BROOKLYN-CLEVELAND

The following is the story of the fifth game, play by play.

Sports Correspondence

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir.—My attention has been drawn to THE CHINA PRESS of this morning in which you state that in the eighth race of yesterday "I proceeded to bore in on Mr. Dallas until (his pony) was put squarely on the fence. It was unfortunate strategy, to say the least, in that it marred the high standard of sportsmanship maintained throughout the day." You continue as follows: "Mr. Heard is not a rider who makes it a habit of indulging in such saddle methods and it was regrettable that they should be employed against Mr. Dallas who is only just emerging from the apprentice class of gentlemen riders."

These remarks of yours distinctly impute to me a charge of foul riding. The true facts are

I had the rails (I presume this is what is meant by "Grand Stand's" reference to the "Pole") all the way up the straight and did not race neck and neck with "Shenkoland" as described. Mr. Dallas evidently tried to come through on the rails, a chance which he took at his risk and collided with me, which may have given the impression that I was responsible for the impact.

A copy of this letter has been forwarded to Mr. Dallas and to Stewards of the International Recreation Club and I must accordingly ask you to contradict your inaccurate and offensive remarks in your next issue.

Yours faithfully,
A. J. P. Heard.

Shanghai, Oct. 12, 1920.

("Grandstand" merely reported the race as he saw it, which every sports writer is supposed to do. It appeared to "Grandstand" that Mr. Heard swung wide at the turn and that Mr. Dallas seized the opportunity to come through on the rail and had got to even terms when the so-called boring-in occurred.

However, "it is differences of opinion that makes horse-racing" as the old saw goes. There was no intention, of course, to offend Mr. Heard, who is a much more experienced rider than Mr. Dallas can be expected to be at present. —Sports Editor.)

'Doc' Morris Plans Billiard Tourney

"Ol' Doc' Morris," genial supervisor of the thirst and billiard departments of the Palace Hotel, is slowly but surely gathering together the billiard cohorts of Shanghai for a handicap tournament to be started as soon as the entrants can be properly classified.

The conditions provide for preliminary games of 250 points each, with 500-point struggles in the finals. The entries close on the evening of the 15th, so those who desire to enter will be required to hustle if they expect to get in.

The first games will probably take place on the 20th of the present month. All of the entry fees will go toward the purchase of prizes to be awarded to the various winners.

The Yanks' new park will be a soupcutter. It will be located right in the heart of the high rent district, near our most fashionable police stations. It is estimated that the works will cost about fifty millions. Government contractor style, or one million in work and the rest in extras.

Nothing but the best, is the motto of Cap. Huston and Colonel Ruppert.

Each peanut will have an individual bag.

Fans will shoot nothing but cutglass pop bottles.

The foul lines will be painted by one of Europe's famous portrait painters.

The base bags will be overstuffer sofa pillows designed by Urban.

EAGER TO MOVE

Huston and Ruppert are anxious to rattle into their new home. Foul tips will be sifted through a solid gold screen in front of the grand stand. Rudyard Kipling will be asked to write the collar ads. on the right field fence.

The seating capacity will be designed by the Interborough engineers, which will give the park the largest standing room in the world.

As an added attraction to the baseball season, there will be a beauty contest to decide who are the five most beautiful umpires in the world.

This bird Hoppe is figuring out the five prettiest gals, which looks like discrimination against the men. We saw five of those heads picked out by Hoppe and they were Hoppe heads all right.

SIX-LAYER STANDS

The stands will be six layers deep, like a wedding cake. The fans can have their suits cleaned and pressed while waiting for an ump to reverse a poor decision.

There will be two diamonds laid out in the mammoth field. In case of a double-header the teams can play both games at the same time. This saves traveling expenses for the birds who have to scoff their dinners in the nearest delicatessen clinic.

The management will spare no expense in their efforts to make the fans feel at home. New York fans deserve the best baseball, and they are going to get the best baseball even if the White Sox have to furnish it.

Meet At Colombes, Arranged "To Avenge Antwerp," Won By Americans By Comparatively Close Score—Boys Show Mettle In France

Colombes, France, Aug. 29 (Delayed). The members of the American Olympic team who came down from Antwerp to compete against the pick of Swedish and French representatives in the Olympics were rewarded at the Colombes Stadium today when they performed before a larger crowd than watched them at Antwerp on any day during the Olympic contests.

The event had been widely advertised in the French newspapers during the past week as "a revenge for the Antwerp Olympic games." The American team scored a total of 134 points, Sweden 128 and France 78.

Andre Lefevre, the War Minister; many French Generals; Leland Harrison, secretary of the American Embassy in Paris, who represented Ambassador Wallace, and most of the American colony in the capital were present.

In the 110-meter hurdles, Early Thomson, the Dartmouth College star, was first; H. E. Barron, Meadowbrook Club, Philadelphia, was second, and J. M. Watt, Ithaca, third. The time was 15 2-5 seconds. Thomson, who represented Canada in the Olympic events, won eased up after leading the whole distance.

The 100-meter flat dash was won by Charles W. Paddock, Los Angeles A. C., in 10 4-5 seconds. J. V. Scholz, University of Missouri, was second; Mourlan, France, third; Alikban, France, fourth, and Nils Engdahl, Sweden, fifth. Paddock got away in the lead and led by two yards at the fifty-meter mark. Scholz gradually cut down his lead. Paddock winning by six inches.

The 400-meter hurdles was won by Floyd Smart, Chicago A. A., in 55 2-5 seconds. Georges Andre, France was second; Carl Christiensen, Sweden, third, and Billy [illegible], Boston A. A., fourth. Andre led all the way, Smart just getting up in the last few strides to win by inches.

Engdahl, Sweden, was first in the 400-meter flat race in 49 3-5 seconds. Delvart, France, was second; J. W. Driscoll, Boston A. A., third; R. S. Emery, Chicago A. A., fourth, and Malm, Sweden, fifth. Engdahl led from start to finish.

SWEDE WINS SHOT PUT

In the shot put event Wilson, of Sweden, was first with 14.525 meters; H. B. Liversedge, United States Navy, was second; Janssen, Sweden, third, and George H. Bihlman, Olympic Club, San Francisco, fouth.

M. M. Kirksey, Olympic Club, San Francisco, won the 200-meter dash; Lorrainne, France, was second; Caste, France, third; Tirard, France, fourth, and Renard, France, fifth. Kirksey's time was 21 3-5 seconds, which equals the world's record. Kirksey was all in at the finish.

The 1,500-meter run was won by Lundgren, of Sweden. M. L. Shields, Meadowbrook Club, Philadelphia, was second; Burtin, France, third, and J. J. Connolly, Boston A. A., fourth. The winner's time was 4 minutes 7 2-5 seconds. Lundgren won easily, Shields using up phis strenggth in making the pace.

H. H. Brown, Boston A. A., won the 5,000-meter race in 15 minutes 27 seconds; Denys, France, was second; Ivan C. Dresser, New York A. C., third, and Bachman, Sweden, fourth. The three leaders finish after a slow pace early in the race.

R. W. Landon, New York A. C., won the high jump with 1.89 meters. Ekelund, of Sweden, was second, and Lowden, France, third.

The American team, Paddock, Kirksey, Scholz and Woodring, finished first in the 400-meter relay in 42 2-5 seconds. France was second and Sweden third.

The pole vault was won by E. E. Meyers, Chicago A. A., with Rudderg, Sweden, second, and Franquenelle, France, third. Meyers cleared 3.8 meters.

FRENCH COLONIES NEXT TO BRITAIN'S

Development Of Commerce And Resources Bring Nation Great Wealth

(Reuter's Service)

New York, September 12 (by mail).—Unusual progress in the development of commerce and natural resources in the French Colonial possessions and dependencies has brought them wealth ranking next to that of the British Colonial Empire, according to a survey made public here by the French Commission.

Total exports from the Colonies in 1919, with the exception of Algeria and Tunis, were valued at approximately 1,103,000,000 francs. Since 1914 exports in the various possessions increased from 25 to 100 percent. The increases are attributed to the thrift of natives following the end of the war.

ALGERIAN EXPORTS

The total of Algerian exports in 1919 was more than 1,334,000,000 francs, in increase of about 558,000,000 francs over 1918. The port of Algiers alone handled exports amounting to approximately 475,158,000 francs, an increase of about 200,822,000 francs, according to estimates. Chief imports were cotton, clothing and linen, skins, coal, sugar and coffee. Chief exports were wines, fruit, tobacco, wheat, oats, barley and wool. Amounts of imports and exports were greatest in the order mentioned.

National roads in Algeria have a length of 3,310 miles, while 2,203 miles of railway were open for traffic in January, 1919.

Tunis, essentially an agricultural country, had bumper grain crops in 1919, as follows: Wheat, 6,500,552 bushels: barley, 5,428,223 bushels: oats, 3,444,722 bushels.

HARVEST ESTIMATE

The spring estimate of the 1920 harvest in the French zone of Morocco valued the crops at 1,000,000,000 francs and it was expected that there would be a large surplus for export. Exports to France in 1918 were valued at 82,062,880 francs and the imports at 155,224,925 francs.

In Madagascar, French Equatorial Africa, French Somaliland and French West Africa, which is the largest of the Colonies, commerce has almost doubled since 1914.

Calls Schoolmaster Bigger War Factor Than The General

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 11.—The Minister of Public Instruction, M. Honorat, presided yesterday at the closing session of the League of Education Congress at the Amiens Town Hall.

The Minister explained the interest which the French Government was taking in the great problems of national education, adding: "There was talk of the German schoolmaster in 1870. The French schoolmaster has done more for this country than the General Staff, for it was he who formed the spirit of the youth of France, which bore itself so resolutely during the war.

Paris, Oct. 11.—According to reports from Athens, King Alexander's condition (following a bite by a pet monkey) has grown worse, but it is considered that His Majesty's strong constitution and youth will triumph.

The arrival of Professor Vidal of the Paris Faculty of Medicine is awaited.

Plucky Miss Crosses Channel On Water Bicycle, Only Eats An Egg

Many persons have swam the English Channel and a number of aviators have flown across it, but no one has ever attempted to cross the Channel in the manner in which nineteen-year-old Miss Zotta Hill succeeded in doing.

This plucky miss, on a specially constructed waterbicycle, paddled her way across the rough waters of the Channel. During the entire trip the only nourishment that Miss Hill took was an egg and the camera man caught her in the act.

The Bandman Company

"The Yellow Ticket" gave the Bandman Company a fine opportunity of showing whether they were any good at really strong drama. We have seen the players in a couple of light comedies, and they have pleased everyone with their excellent portrayals. Laughs came just when they ought to, and applause was generous from the rise of the curtain to its fall. What would the company be like in the thrilling stuff?

They were fine. "The Yellow Ticket" is a story that has a grip from the first page. It deals with a fascinating subject. What the plot is, does not call for repetition now. Why spoil a good story? But it is full of strong passages. It is well written. It is certainly well played.

Miss Beryl Barraclough had the majority of the work to do. If she had weakened for a moment the play would have experienced a different verdict to that one it unanimously gained. She carried a big task on her little shoulders. She had to portray a part that called for real emotion; for tears; for repression, for fine expression. She rose splendily to her call, and gave a performance that stamps her definitely as an actress of ability and versatility.

Mr. Phil Carlton cast the cares of management on other shoulders for the evening and played a big part as "Baron Stepan Andreyeff." I can conceive of no part that calls for more delicate playing than that which is demanded in Act II. That he kept the audience spell bound, and thoroughly convinced them with his work, speaks well for his portrayal. A grand piece of work, and deserving of special appreciation.

Mr. Clive Woods was given a chance to shine in the part of "Julian Rolfe." He took it, and from start to finished gave a very excellent interpretation of the English journalist. He has a good presence, and a voice that is most pleasing, and capable of any amount of expression.

"Paul Pavlac" had a very good exponent in Mr. Oliver Twiss. He has power and gives a faithful picture of the Russian Police agent. Carl Lawson (Monsieur Zoubatoff), David Kier (John Seaton) provided small character studies which were well in keeping with the general excellence of the show.

To Miss Niqua Lewis as "Margery Seaton" a word of praise is called for. She made a dainty ingenue and proved very popular with the audience.

Tonight the play will be repeated and can certainly be strongly recommended.

OBATA REPLIES ABOUT HUNGCHUN

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, Oct. 12, (Filed at 8:10 p.m.).—Mr. Obata, Japanese Minister today informed the foreign office that the Japanese military policing in the district of Hungchun was now inevitable.

He promises, however, that the troops will be withdrawn as soon as peace and order are assured in this district.

Li Shi-hao, former Anfu Minister of Finance, is reported to have changed his place of refuge from the Russo-Asiatic Bank to the Italian Concession. It is thought that this grows out of a change of status of the Russo-Asiatic bank, which is now flying the French flag.

NEW SPEED RECORD FOR AIRPLANES SET

(Reuter's Wireless Service)

Paris, October 11.—The French newspapers are unanimous in hailing the Buc Aviation Meeting as a great success. The following are the results of the flight from Paris to Brussels and from Paris to London and back:

Paris-Brussels and back:

1. Deullin; time 4 hrs. 15 mins. 12 secs.

2. Lemen; time 4 hrs. 22 mins. 18 secs.

Paris-London and back:

1. Bourdon; time 4 hrs. 46 mins. 16 secs.

2. Bajac; time 5 hrs. 49 mins. 30 secs.

After the meeting Sadi Lecointe succeeded in beating the world's speed record, held by De Romanet, by completing a distance of 1 kilometer in 12 1-10 secs., thus reaching a speed of 296 kilometers an hour.

Secrets of Beauty

WILL you please suggest something for an oily skin?—M. M.

Here is an excellent preparation which has been highly recommended for an oily skin. Use a little of it once or twice a day as needed:

Sulphate of zinc.....2 grains
Comp. tinct. of lavender.8 minims
Distilled water .....1 ounce

WON'T you please tell me how to reduce the bust? I have heard that there is no way at all of reducing it safely. Is this true?—B. A. D.

Almost any exercise or system of dieting which will tend to reduce your entire body will likewise have its effect in reducing the bust. Sometimes wearing close-fitting rubber garments next to the skin will reduce this region by promoting heavy perspiration, but I do not approve of any of these more drastic remedies because of the grave likelihood of causing serious trouble later on.

WHAT can I do to make the cuticle on my finger-nails look neat and not rise above the bottom of the nail?—DISTRESSED.

Before manicuring them soak the finger-nails for five minutes in a bowl of warm, soapy water to which a few drops of tincture of benzoin have been added. This softens the cuticle so it can be pushed back with an orange-wood stick. Wrap a piece of cotton on the end of the stick and go around the oval very carefully, gently pushing the cuticle back until the white lunula at the base of the nail is plainly visible. Do not cut the cuticle except when absolutely necessary to remove hangnails.

HOW can I make my chin more prominent? It is not full enough to suit me and spoils my profile.—L. C. N.

If there is a decided structural weakness of the jaw there is very little you can do except to dress the hair very loosely and fluffily so that the defect may not be noticeable. Try thrusting your chin forward whenever you can think of it. You must cultivate, also, more strength of character. A strong chin is almost invariably an indication of very decided will power and usually denotes plenty of determination. Sometimes a daily massage with a good flesh-building cream will help.

YOU recommended a recipe containing resorcin and witch hazel as a tonic for the hair. What effect will this preparation have on the hair's color and how should it be applied?—E. W.

The tonic you refer to may possibly tend to lighten the hair a trifle, but its effect will not be very conspicuous. It should be applied twice a week by rubbing a small quantity of the preparation into the scalp, massaging it well into the roots of the hair with the tips of the fingers.

WHAT would you advise for continuous perspiration under the arms? This is extremely annoying as well as odorous.—TROUBLED.

It is not advisable to do anything to stop this perspiration entirely, as it is a highly necessary bodily function. But you can neutralize the unpleasant effects by the daily application of this antiseptic powder:

Borax .....10 grams
Starch .....10 grams
Salicylic acid .....3 grams
Powdered alum .....5 grams
Talcum powder .....50 grams
Napthol .....5 grams

CAN you tell me of some way to reduce my bust?—H. C. M.

Because of the danger of inducing the dreaded cancerous growths later I do not advocate any of the more rapid ways of reducing the bust. Why don't you try Indian clubs? Here is a movement that is excellent for pulling the flesh off the bust and shoulders. Every morning upon arising hold the clubs firmly and extend arms at side; circle them in the shoulder sockets, swinging forward, upward and backward, each arm alternately fifteen times; then reverse motion and repeat.

I AM a woman with a great deal of housework to do and am getting very stout. Do you know of any way I could reduce without taking a lot of medicine internally?—R. S.

It is extremely difficult to diet while you are engaged in looking after the meals for your family, but you can at least be careful to avoid those foods which encourage the laying on of fat, such as potatoes, white bread, fat meats and too many sweet desserts. You must also cut down the quantity you eat and force yourself to take a certain amount of out-door exercise every day.

Sandwich Recipes

By Mary Lee Swann,
The Well-Known Writer and Lecturer on Cooking.

Corned Beef Sandwiches.

CHOP cold corned beef very fine. Season to taste with French mustard and spread evenly on brown or white bread.

Egg Sandwiches.

PRESS hard-cooked eggs through potato ricer. Season to taste with salt, paprika and cooked salad dressing. Spread on thinly buttered slices of bread, press together and shape as desired.

Horseradish Sandwiches.

WASH and cream 6 tablespoons butter and add ¼ cup grated horseradish very gradually. Season with 1 teaspoon lemon juice and a pinch of salt. Spread between thin slices of bread, shape as desired and garnish with tiny rings of pimentoes, gherkins or pimolas.

Green Pepper and Onion Sandwiches.

FINELY chop ½ large Bermuda onion and 3 sweet green peppers. Drain thoroughly, moisten with a little French dressing and place in ice box to chill. Cream butter and spread evenly on thin slices of bread. Put bread together with the pepper and onion mixture.

Shrimp and Chicken Liver Sandwiches.

PRESS ½ cup cooked shrimps through a food chopper and mix with ½ cup cooked chicken liver, ½ sweet red pepper and ½ Bermuda onion, also pressed through food chopper. Seeds and veins should be removed from pepper. Season to taste with salt and pepper and moisten with cooked or mayonnaise dressing. Spread between thin slices of buttered bread.

Shrimp Salad Sandwiches.

MINCE 1 cup shrimps very fine. Moisten with a little cooked dressing or mayonnaise and season with 2 teaspoons lemon juice and ¼ cup chopped stuffed olives.

Sardine Sandwiches.

WASH and cream ½ cup butter. Remove bones from 6 sardines and pound or wash to a paste. Add to butter and cream together, adding 1 teaspoon lemon juice and a few grains of pepper. If lobster sandwiches are desired add ¼ cup lobster paste to the butter instead of the sardine paste. Color the lobster mixture with a little lobster coral.

Club Sandwiches.

REMOVE crusts from 2 large slices of bread and cut in triangles. Toast evenly. Spread 2 of the triangles with mayonnaise or cooked dressing. Then place crisp lettuce leaves on them. On the lettuce lay thinly sliced cold white meat of chicken, and on this place crisp broiled breakfast bacon and another layer of lettuce. Cover with toast spread with dressing.

Bread and Butter Sandwiches.

WASH butter in cold water and work to a cream. Remove end slice from loaf of bread. Spread end of loaf evenly with butter. Cut off as thin a slice as possible. Repeat until enough for the required number of sandwiches is ready. Put slices together in pairs and remove crusts if desired. Cut in squares, oblongs, rounds, hearts, triangles or any desired shape. The creamed butter is sometimes colored delicately with vegetable coloring.

French Chicken Sandwiches.

PREPARE a paste as for eclairs, bake in narrow long pieces, and when well done split and fill with finely chopped chicken, moistened with mayonnaise dressing.

Whipped Cream Sandwiches.

ADD ½ cup sifted powdered sugar to 1 cup thick cream and beat until stiff. Flavor to taste with a few drops vanilla or other extract. Chill and spread thick between sponge cookies or lady fingers.

Walnut and Cheese Sandwiches.

WASH and cream ½ cup butter. Add ¼ pound grated cheese gradually, mixing thoroughly. Then add salt and pepper to taste and ½ pound shredded English walnut meats. Spread evenly and finish as other sandwiches.

Sunday Night Supper Sandwiches.

WASH and cream ½ cup butter and add ½ cup finely chopped cold cooked veal and ½ cup finely chopped cold ham. Season to taste with salt and paprika. Prepare as any other sandwiches.

Gelatine Sandwiches.

SOAK ½ box gelatine in ½ cup cold water about 20 minutes. Add ½ cup boiling water and stir until dissolved. Add ½ cup sugar and strain if necessary. Then add 2 tablespoons lemon juice and ¾ cup other fruit juice (orange, strawberry, raspberry, etc.). Mold in large sheet, ¼ inch thick. Place between thin slices of sponge or other plain cake and serve with cold fruit juice drinks.

Problems of Love

Solved by Leonore Carfax

I AM a stenographer and have been engaged to a young man for two years. He makes only $15 a week and we both realize that is not enough on which to marry. He has been expecting a raise, but never gets it, and he now thinks I ought to be willing to marry him and go on working in the office. My parents are very much opposed to my doing this. What do you advise me to do?—S. J.

I am inclined to think your parents are right in the matter. There is no objection under certain circumstances to the wife's working to add to the family income, but when she is forced to do this as a condition of marriage the prospect is not very bright. If your betrothed has reached the limit of advancement in his present position he ought to try to secure one with a better future. Certainly he ought to resort to night work and even forego the idea of marriage altogether rather than ask you to help him out on his part of the marriage contract.

I HAVE been supporting my mother and myself since my father's death a year ago, but I am not strong, and I am constantly haunted by the fear that I will break down and we will become objects of charity. A middle-aged man in good circumstances wants me to marry him and promises to take the best of care of my mother. I am tempted to accept his offer even though I do not love him. It would be very different from what I had always imagined marriage should be, but perhaps I am too much of an idealist. Do you think I should take this easy way out of my difficulties?—ANN.

No, I am afraid that what you call the "easy way" would prove the hard way, after all. Just because you are an idealist would make it all the more difficult to compromise with the sordid facts of a loveless marriage. There are so many opportunities for girls to support themselves now, and if your present work is too hard for you why not make an effort to secure an easier position? It may mean self-denial and hardship at the present time, but isn't the sacrifice worth while if it enables you to hold on to your ideals until the right man comes along?

WE have been married only a few months and I have discovered that my husband has the most terrible temper. As soon as the least thing goes wrong he begins to smash the china and break up the furniture. Is there any way I can cure him of this fault?—I. I.

Since breaking up the china is only an indirect way of hurting you, the less concern you show for your china the better. In plays, I believe, this is usually accomplished by the wife nonchalantly breaking a few plates herself. Of course, you would hardly want to try this. Your husband doesn't want the china broken any more than you do, but he probably has discovered that this is the easiest way to get what he wants. I should imagine if you walked coolly out of the room it would have some effect, for I never heard of anyone breaking up things when no one was around to watch. It is a sort of "grandstand play," and the sooner such people lose their audience the better.

BEFORE I married my husband I told him an untruth about some trouble in my own family for which I was in no way to blame. I was sure that if he knew the truth he would not marry me. But to cover that first lie I have had to tell so many others that it seems as if our entire married life is nothing but a tissue of lies. I am now living in daily terror lest he discover the true facts back of my first falsehood. Do you suppose it would help any for me to confess before he discovers the truth for himself?—VERA.

The first thing for you to grasp is the fundamental cause of your trouble. You seem less concerned about telling an untruth than you do about avoiding the consequences of your untruthfulness. To tamper with the truth is like playing with fire. Whatever you feared to tell your husband in the first place could not possibly have done as much damage to your relations to each other as has your taking advantage of the confidence he reposed in you. Show your husband that you grasp this principle by treating him honestly and squarely from now on and by telling him the whole truth. It will be the only hope you have of ever regaining his confidence, and a happy married life without that is impossible.

Welch's Grape Juice

Welch Hi-Ball
Fill eight-ounce glass half full of Welch's; add cube of ice and plain or aerated water. This tart-sweet drink is especially appreciated by men. Sugar may be added.

On hot sultry evenings when the air hangs heavy, the slightly tart, delectably cool, fresh-grape flavor of WELCH'S Grape Juice, will invigorate and refresh you.

WELCH'S is the perfect social drink for club or home.

Added to lemonade or punch, it gives distinctive flavor and character.

Buy it by the case or bottle of your dealer.

RAILWAY TO TAP SOUTH ECUADOR

Pacific Ocean And Interior Of Amazon Country To Be Connected

(Reuter's Service)

New York, September 12 (by mail).—The Santiago de Chile correspondent of the Associated Press writes:

Construction of a railway, which would connect the Pacific Ocean with the Amazon River, serving the Republics of Ecuador, Colombia an Venezuela on the north and Peru, Bolivia and Brazil on the south, is involved in a concession which has been authorised by the Ecuadorean Government. Authority for the construction of the railway, according to a Chilean weekly, was obtained from the Government at Quito by Senor Ignacio Leon, a former Chilean diplomat, for a syndicate capitalised at $25,000,000, the members of which include many prominent Chileans.

The route would start from Port Bolivia on the Pacific and run to Port Berza on the Amazon. The proposed railway in addition to serving a zone bordering on what is said to be amongst the best Petroleum bearing districts in Peru, would afford a means of connection the four large and isolated provinces of Southern Ecuador, with 500,000 inhabitants, with the rest of the country.

Attack Old Theory Concerning New Stars

Astronomer Thinks Mere Approach Of Two Dark Bodies Causes Incandescence

Paris, August 31.—The new star which appeared suddenly in the constellation of Cygnus a few days ago is exciting the attention of French astronomers, and yesterday's meeting of the Academy of Science devoted its entire attention to it.

The interest felt is due to the fact that some phenomena which have attended its appearance tend to discredit the theory that new stars are invariably caused by collisions of astral bodies and their consequent combustion. This new star has not, it appears, developed heat enough to support this theory. On August 27 its temperature was only 6,000 degrees, while two days later, although it had diminished considerably in size, it had a temperature of 8,000 degrees. At best this "nova" was a star of only the second magnitude, and now it has sunk to fourth place and seems likely to disappear altogether.

The contrast between its size and the heat generated has led to the conclusion that there was no actual collision in the heavens, and that a theory which has been advanced on former occasions is correct, namely, that combustion was caused by the mere approach to each other of two dark astral bodies. This, it is argued, was sufficient to dislocate the surface of one and give rise to a great outburst of incandescent was. If the stars had been in collision the outburst of heat would have been greatest at the first moment and would not have increased while the surface decreased.

These conclusions, which were communicated to the Academy by M. Deslandres of the Meudon Observatory are regarded as confirming the theory that conflagrations in the heavens do not necessarily depend upon direct collision.

EVENT AT FRENCH CLUB

"Le Traite D'Auteuil," a comedy by Louis Verneuil, is to be given at the Cercle Sportif Francais on the evening of Saturday, October 23, as stated in notices that have been issued by the committee of the club. It is pointed out in this that the number of seats is limited to 350, due to the size of the ball room. A cold supper is to be served at midnight after which the usual Saturday night dance will take place.

Gypsy Lad, 13, Marries Cousin Of Same Age

What would your folks have said if at the age of thirteen you promised to love, honor and obey? Child welfare workers in New York were recently startled when thirteen-year-old John Costello married his cousin, Rosie Costello, the same age, at Tuckahoe, N. Y. The girl at the right is the youthful bride. John appears in the panel. On the left is Mary Costello, another of John's cousins, who was one of the "ladies in attendance" and who will also shortly join the matrimonial ranks, John's father had to pay Rosie's father $3,500 before the bride could leave the paternal care of her dad. The gypsies started feasting and dancing at sunrise on the day of the wedding and continued these ceremonies for three days.

Steamer Venezuela To Arrive Tomorrow

Word was received yesterday by the Shanghai office of the Pacific Mail that the steamer Venezuela, bound from San Francisco by way of Honolulu and Japan ports, will arrive here early tomorrow morning, probably between the hours of 7 and 8 o'clock.

The Venezuela brings 250 bags of mail, 1,200 tons of cargo and about 60 passengers for Shanghai.

Fireproof Airplane Makes Spectacular Flight At Night

(Reuter's Service)

Mineola, October 8 (delayed).—American and British aviation experts witnessed a striking, night demonstration by Mr. Paul Collins, a civilian airman, with an alleged fireproof airplane, fitted with a patented device permitting airplanes to make safe landings at night.

Prior to the ascent the machine was treated with a fireproof substance, and Mr. Collins donned a suit which had been similarly treated.

The petrol was set on fire at a height of 5,000 feet. The airplane made a thrilling volplane like a comet, and effected a perfect landing. The whole landing field was illumined with two magnesium flares which the airman had dropped from the tips of the wings, and the lights of which were reflected by mirrors under the fuselage.

Dance Is Planned By Woman's Club

A joint meeting of the members of the social department and the social service department of the American Woman's Club is to be held at 10:30 o'clock at the Carlton Cafe this morning. All members of the club have been asked to attend to plan for a dance to be given for the sailors of the American fleet that will soon be in Shanghai.

Reception Is Given At American School

Many Attend Affair Arranged To Welcome New Members Of Faculty

The Shanghai American School was taxed to capacity when the numerous friends and patrons of the institution were in attendance yesterday upon invitation of the faculty to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Willard W. Bartlett, the new principal and new preceptress, Miss Sara E. Jerkins of Atlanta, Georgia, music department, Miss Rosebel Stewart of Rock Island, Ill., teaching staff, Miss Nellie Haskell of last year's graduating class, on the Home Management staff and Mr. W F. Beaman, new business manager, to the work of the school.

From 4 to 7 the beautifully decorated reception halls were thronged with happy guests who refreshed themselves on sandwiches, tea and cake daintily served by this year's seniors.

The enrolment of the school has already gone beyond the two hundred mark, surpassing that of any previous year and making it necessary to turn away others who wish to enter.

WHAT WOMAN NEEDS

above all things are Health and Happiness. These are the true Woman's Rights! Every woman is entitled to them. Dame Nature intended her daughters to be healthy in body and happy in mind. Any woman conscious of pain and trouble which she feels might be removed will be well advised to make careful enquiry as to the cause. If it is found—as indeed is frequently the case—that a disordered digestion is giving rise to ill-health and the consequent depression of spirits, medicine of the right sort will doubtless soon set matters right. But it must be of the right sort. Beecham's Pills are to be strongly recommended for woman's needs. They may be taken with perfect confidence for derangements of the digestive organs, including such unpleasant ailments as sick-headache, biliousness, flatulence, constipation and the lassitude and worries often incidental to her sex. Every woman may get nearer to Health and Happiness by using

If you haven't yet tried Cutex, send for the trial set today. See how noticeably better your nails look after their first Cutex manicure!

Stains and discolorations disappear as if by magic the moment you apply Cutex Nail White underneath the nails.

A lasting, brilliant gloss or a soft transparent finish, just as you prefer, you can get with Cutex Nail Polish.

"So smooth does Cutex leave the skin at the base of the nails, I never think of allowing my cuticle to be cut."
Geraldine Farrar

How to keep your nails looking freshly manicured all the time

YOUR nails look unbelievably lovely after their Cutex manicure! They are so shapely, so exquisitely groomed; the cuticle edge at their base is as smooth, firm and even as if they had just had a professional manicure. You are delighted with their appearance!

Keep them looking lovely always!

Spasmodic attention won't do it—having your nails manicured occasionally may only make the cuticle look worse, in the long run. But with a bottle of Cutex at hand, it is so easy to keep your cuticle always smooth and firm.

So little trouble, too

Once or twice a week, according to the rapidity with which your cuticle grows, dip the end of an orange stick, wrapped with absorbent cotton, into your bottle of Cutex and work it gently around the base of each nail, gently pressing back the cuticle. Carefully rinse the fingers in clear water, pressing back the cuticle as you dry your hands.

Thousands and thousands of women would tell you that in half the time it takes for the ordinary manicure, they can, with Cutex, keep their nails always in noticeably lovely condition. Use Cutex regularly, and you, too, will find that it does away entirely with the cuticle cutting and trimming that ruin the appearance of your nails.

Get a bottle today at any drug or department store.

Cutex, the cuticle remover, comes in 70c and $1.10 bottles. Cutex Nail White and Nail Polish are also 70c.

Send today for the complete manicure set shown below

If you have never given your nails a Cutex manicure, send today for this complete Cutex manicure set and see for yourself how attractive your nails can be made to look.

Whangpoo Conservancy Board

Notification No. 101.

WHEREAS it has come to the notice of the Whangpoo Conservancy Board that certain parties are negotiating for the purchase and sale of certain foreshore lands in the Lower Whangpoo near to the I Chow Embankment, now called the Military Road to Woosung (Chun Kung Road), and WHEREAS according to Article 7 of the Provisional Agreement for the Administration of the Whangpoo Conservancy adopted by the Ministers of the Treaty Powers at Peking and agreed to by the Chinese Government through the Prime Minister on the 4th April, 1912 and a supplementary article No. 12 to the same, approved by the Chinese Government through the Prime Minister on the 4th April 1912 and a supplementary article No. 12 to the same, approved by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Ministers of the Treaty Powers and adopted January 19th 1916, such foreshore lands are under the control of the said Whangpoo Conservancy Board, and WHEREAS the jurisdiction of the Conservancy Board has been clearly defined in the aforesaid Agreement, as extending between high-water lines, placing all foreshore and reclaimed or reclaimable areas under Conservancy jurisdiction, the Public is hereby notified that the title to any and all foreshore areas between high-water lines from the Kiangnan Arsenal to the Conservancy training works at Woosung can only be obtained through the Whangpoo Conservancy Board, to whom payment must be made of the Shengko price assessed thereby. No Shengko plan or receipt for payment of Shengko is valid unless issued by the Board.

By Order of the Whangpoo Conservancy Board.

Notification No. 296

FAMINE RELIEF FUND (144/1)

The public is hereby infomed that, by order of the Ministry of Communications, the following measures will be adopted on this line on and after 11th October, 1920.

(1) At the time of selling passenger tickets at all stations, a FAMINE RELIEF FUND will be collected in addition to passenger fare irrespective of distances covered by the ticket, namely:

(a) For each first class ticket $0.20
(b) ,, ,, second ,, ,, ... $0.10
(c) ,, ,, third ,, ,, ...5 copper cents

(2) For through passenger tickets, the above fund will be collected in accordance with the number of lines by which the holders travel, i.e. for every line the above amount corresponding to its class will be collected in addition to the passenger fare.

(3) For each freight invoice, 5% of its total charges will be collected in addition for the above fund.

(4) For each parcel ticket, 3% of its total charges will be collected in addition for the above fund.

(5) The above additional fund will be collected by station masters of all stations at the time of selling tickets or issuing goods or parcel invoice, as the case may be, and the amount so collected shall be entered on the freight invoice. In the case of "To Pay Accounts" for which the freight is not collected by the station masters, such fund shall be collected by the Accounts Department at the time of collecting the respective freight whereupon receipts are to be issued.

(6) For military transportation, transportation of railway material for home and other lines and for free or reduced rate benevolent transportations, no famine relief fund will be collected.

(7) The above named amounts are to be paid in big dollars, payment made in small silver coins will be charged 2 copper cents extra for every ten-cent piece.

(sd) S. C. SHU,
Managing Director.

More Bolshevist Propaganda

INVASION of the International Settlement of Shanghai on a large scale by agents of the Bolshevist propaganda marked the celebration of the Double Ten Festival and the attention of the Consular Body and other authorities is hereby called to the fact. Circulars printed in red were circulated throughout the International and French Settlements and also among the police and soldiery in the surrounding Chinese districts. The distribution was carried out by Bolshevist agents in motor cars and by hired Chinese coolies.

The particular circular sent in to us advocates the overthrow of all forms of government in China, condemns the use of money as a medium of exchange and the right of private ownership of property. It praises the Russian revolution and suggests the use of bombs and revolvers as a means to this end.

Here are some of the headings:
How can we secure genuine happiness?
The multi-criminal system of government!
The multi-criminal system of property owning!
A popular revolution!
A revolution for the abolition of government!

Similar Bolshevist propaganda has been in course of distribution for months past, as we have frequently pointed out. And while events in Russia are tending to show that Bolshevism there is losing ground, and with its collapse there, it will collapse elsewhere, there is every reason why the authorities here should be on their guard against the inculcation of these dreams of reckless and irresponsible visionaries. It has been our contention that the Allies should have permitted the Russians to tackle the scheme without interference. It was outside interference that the Russians and especially the Bolshevists objected to, and if allowed full sway the scheme itself would have worked around to much the same form of government that exists elsewhere in the world.

But now the Bolshevists who are, we believe, under promise to Great Britain to cease activities of this sort in Asia, seem to be redoubling their efforts.

It is fortunate for China that their propaganda thus far has made little or no impression upon the Chinese mind, but in view of these new activities and especially in view of the exciting events now transpiring in Peking, it seems to us doubly necessary that the activities of these agents be brought to a halt in this community.

"Standing as I do in view of God and Eternity, I realise that Patriotism is not enough. I must have no hatred or bitterness towards any one."

—EDITH CAVELL whose execution took place October 12, 1915.

FOR EVER AND FOR EVER

Thy name through all the years that be
Shall be forgotten never;
When foes be friends and slaves be free,
They'll cherish thee forever.

Thy gentle spirit held the key,
Whose lock, no hate could sever,
'Twas bounden fast by Sympathy—
In Peace to reign forever.

Though cruel hands were laid on thee,
From which none could deliver
Save God, you fell to rise and be
A Nation's saint forever.
And as you faced Eternity
To cross the Mystic River,
No hatred held thy soul in fee,
You died to live forever.

So let a Dawn of Liberty
The Power of Hatred shiver,
Let "Peace on Earth" a tribute be
To Miss Cavell forever.

"LABOR'S IDEAL"

"The British Labor Party is founded upon the instinct of Mother-Love. For my little girl I dream dreams and see visions. I think of her as a noble woman who will do great deeds of good and mercy for her people. I look to her to enjoy and appreciate the best that is in life, in nature, in art, in science. Every mother does that. It is a basic and deeply ingrained instinct, but it may be turned into what is good, or it may be diverted to what is selfish and evil. The mother may want everything for her child alone, or she may want every mother's child to partake of life.

"And the latter is what the British Labor Party wants—life and happiness for every mother's child, and so I say it is founded upon the instinct of Mother-Love."

—Mrs. W. C. ANDERSON.
Founder of the British National Federation of Women Workers.

League As A Campaign Issue, Reduced To Plain Words

There Are Only A Few Real Differences Between Republicans And Democrats—Points On Which They Formerly Agreed Are Now Obscured By Prejudice—A Brief Explanation Of The Covenant

BY WILLIAM L. CHENERY
(New York Times)

A "Solemn Referendum" on the League of Nations is now in progress. The great international question has become the central issue of the Presidential campaign.

For the purposes of the campaign Warren G. Harding, Republican, has become a bitter, if not an unequivocal, enemy of the League. James M. Cox, Democrat, has become its protagonist. Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Roosevelt, Vice Presidential candidates, have each in his own manner aided in making clear the line which in November will cleave the voters of the United States. The parties and the candidates have deliberately chosen to make the League of Nations the shibboleth of 1920. So far as men and women vote rationally—most of us, however, vote our emotions and not our minds—their attitudes toward the League will govern their ballots.

Yet the League of Nations transcends parties. When the confusion of the election has blown away, the reality will inevitably be apparent. A large part of the structure of the League is not really in controversy. "Irreconcilables" such as Borah and Johnson or Sherman, it is true, voted against any kind of a league, and the Irreconcilable Johnson has certified Harding as his own. But the necessity which proverbially knows no law is not embarrassed by political promises. Mr. Lloyd George made the trial of Wilhelm Hohenzollern a national issue when hanging the Kaiser was a popular sentiment in Britain. The former German Emperor, however, has not been tried, and he could probably buy insurance against the possibility of capital punishment in spite of the overwhelming sentiment which the British electorate revealed in December, 1918.

FOR A LEAGUE

Thus when Senator Harding apparently would like to hang the League of Nations, the fervor of politics must be remembered. For the Republican candidate said in his speech of acceptance: "I would hopefully approach the nations of Europe and of the earth, proposing that understanding which makes us a willing participant in the consecration of nations to a new relationship, to commit the moral forces of the world, America included, to peace and to international justice, still leaving America free, independent and self-reliant, but offering friendship to all the world. If men call for more specific details I remind them that moral commitments are broad and inclusive."

Moral commitments are in very truth broad and inclusive. It is altogether likely that, if Mr. Harding ever becomes President, and if he undertakes hopefully to "approach the nations of Europe and the world," he will return from that tour with an article which it will be puzzling to distinguish from the League of Nations. The Wilson label might be erased, but the substance would be basically the same.

That this is true is clear from even a cursory consideration of the present state of the League of Nations and of the burden of the Senate opposition to it. It is, in fact, on analysis, hard to avoid the conclusion that the Senate reservations were based on a hostility toward President Wilson rather than on any genuine dislike of the League itself. For while Senator Lodge sought to emphasise the unbridled right of the United States even to be lawless, if we so desired, in much the same grandiose manner which Kaiser Wilhelm took to the early Hague conferences, it is still improbably that this country would ever choose to become a bully or an outlaw in the family of nations.

ALL SIDES AGREE ON THIS

What, now, are the broad facts of the League of Nations? What are the actual points of political opposition? What is accepted by both parties?

The purpose of the League of Nations is to prevent wars. Nobody in this country has the effrontery to voice a passion for war-making. Few of the fighting age actually have it. Certainly no political campaign would be waged on the general subject. Everybody wants to prevent wars. Nevertheless, nations do have many conflicting interests.

In June, 1914, the interests of Servia and of Austria-Hungary conflicted. No league existed. At the end of July Sir Edward Grey tried to improvise a league when he saw war breakng over the world. A cable was sent to Sir Edward Goschen, British Ambassador at Berlin. The Ambassador was instructed to propose a league, "some more definite rapprochement between the powers," a suggestion, which Sir Edward Grey added, had been "hitherto too utopian to form the subject of definite proposals."

That message to Berlin will always redounds to Sir Ed. Grey's fame, but it did not prevent war. But the idea of a league to prevent wars was kept alive. No other method of maintaining world peace has seemed as feasible. Furthermore, it is true that against the fundamental purpose of the League of Nations there is no important opposition. The man who would oppose any league because he favored wars would cut a small figure in an American Presidential campaign.

The opposition to the League of Nations accordingly does not rest on that ground. The purpose of preventing wars is universally approved.

But, it is argued, the existing League will not prevent wars, and furthermore, the cost of admission is more than the United States is willing to pay. The question of the usefulness of the League as a preventive of war stands scrutiny. What it will do in the future calls for prophecy, but what it has done in the months of its existence is history. The facts of history afford a reasonable ground for appraising the present worth of the world organisation. What is the record? The League was formally organised on Jan. 16 last. Its first meeting was held in the building of the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Twenty-nine nations are now included in its membership. When Japan signed the Mikado issued an extraordinarily significant statement to his people, in the course of which he said: "We are now much gratified to know that a new treaty looking to the establishment of perpetual peace has been arrived at and the foundation of the League of Nations laid down, while, at the same time, we are fully conscious of the heavy responsibility henceforth devolving upon our country. . . . . We therefore call upon our subjects, that, keeping this cardinal aim constantly before them, they should in the first instance work for the attainment of that durable peace contemplated by the institution of the League of Nations, always abiding by the principle of universal justice and following the path of progress of the world."

WHAT THE LEAGUE HAS DONE

The League within the brief term of its existence has assumed important responsibilities. It has taken over the control of the City of Danzig. It has undertaken the government of the Sarre Valley. It has acknowledged its obligation under the Polish treaty to safeguard the rights of minorities in that country. A similar duty to look after racial minorities in Turkey is being performed. An international labor office and an international health office, through which matters of importance to all civilised countries can be handled, have been set up. Under the League's auspices international conferences dealing with financial matters, with industrial affairs, and with conditions on merchant ships have been held.

The League of Nations is already the designated agency through which open diplomacy is being attained. The League is, despite all criticism to the contrary, actually publishing treaties and throwing light on the negotiations which lead to treaties. The Anglo-Japanese alliance, which expires next Summer, is plainly of great significance to the United States. Through the League of Nations the text of the contract which Great Britain and Japan may write will be made public. On July 8 Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary General of the League, published a letter from the Governments of Great Britain and Japan which said that while the present Anglo-Japanese agreement was in harmony with the spirit of the covenant of the League of Nations "it is not entirely consistent with the letter of that convenant, which both Governmens desire to respect. They accordingly have the honor jointly to inform the League that they recognise the principle that if the said agreement is to be continued after July, 1921, it must be in a form that is not inconsistent with that covenant."

POSITIVE ACHIEVEMENT

That is an achievement of the first rank. The League is providing the means whereby treaties will no longer be secret. When it is strong enough by moral force to compel a rewriting of the Anglo-Japanese agreement the League has become a potent influence making for that open diplomacy which truly prevents war. No opposition to open diplomacy, to the publication of treaties, has been uttered in this country. That feature of the League is probably not sinful even to the irreconcilables. At any rate it has not become an occasion for criticism.

But in one case at least the League of Nations has actually prevented what promised to be another war. This hung about the dispute between Finland and Sweden over the Aaland Islands. The islands, a small archipelago formerly belonging to Russia, are claimed by Finland on the grounds of race and contiguity and by Sweden on the ground of self-determination. Irritation between the States became so sharp that the Swedish Minister was withdrawn from Helsingfors and war was forecast. Great Britain, which had no special interest in the matter other than an interest in world peace, brought the matter before the Council of the League. At once the processes of peaceful arbitrament were set in motion. The facts in the case were sent to all nations, members of the League, and Sweden and Finland were each asked to appear before the Council and to submit their cases.

The regular course provided in the constitution of the League of Nations was followed. When the Council met Finland claimed that the issue was purely a domestic one and that accordingly the League of Nations could not decide it. The question thus became one in part of international law and it was referred to a group of jurists. But before the League adjourned Arthur J. Balfour, President of the Council, asked both Finnish and Swedish representatives to give public assurances that the issue would not be aggravated. These assurances were given, and it is highly probable that war has been prevented.

Nobody in the United States is opposed to the actual course of events in this particular episode. Nevertheless, the Aaland Islands case is an apt illustration of the normal workings of the League of Nations. It has provided the cooperation of powers which Sir Edward Grey vainly sought in July, 1914, which might indeed have rendered unnecessary the most ghastly war in the annals of mankind. For the twenty-nine nations now members of the League of Nations are a vital agency for world peace.

The most recent and the most important work undertaken by the League has been the establishment of a permanent court of international justice. Under the constitution of the League this permanent court is charged with the duty of determining legal questions in dispute between nations. Had the League been in existence in 1914 the murder of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand might not have taken its toll of millions. The court just organised under the auspices of the League is in no small way the work of Elihu Root, one of the distinguished minds in the Republican Party. However hateful "President Wilson's League" may be to the irreconcilable members of the Senate who determined Mr. Harding's position, Elihu Root's Permanent Court of International Justice is unpopular with none. Even partisan Democrats have willingly accepted Mr. Root's contribution to the cause of world peace. When, therefore, if elected, Senator Harding sets out "hopefully" to "approach the nations of Europe and of the earth," he will probably not find it desirable to seek a substitute for the notable work which so good a Republican as Mr. Root has performed. The Permanent Court of International Justice will doubtless stand.

The purpose and the principal business of the League of Nations are to prevent the accumulation of controversies which might explode into war. The Aaland Islands episode matured before the Permanent Court of International Justice had begun to function. That case was accordingly referred to a court set up for the especial task. But the Permanent Court is now arranged, and its field has been correlated with that of the Permanent Court of Arbitration, the familiar Hague Tribunal.

The division between the Permanent Court of the League of Nations and The Hague Tribunal is roughly that between a court of law and a court of arbitration. The Permanent Court of International Justice will be similar to the Supreme Court of the United States. It will construe and interpret the international law which the members of the League in assembly may make. The Hague Tribunal, which did not "die with a squeak when Belgium was invaded," as Wells is alleged to have remarked, is available as an arbiter of questions not covered by clear law. Wells's reputed aspersion on The Hague court is no more valid than would the similar charge be if it were said that American criminal jurisprudence had gasped its last because some mob had lynched its victim. Civilisation has a way of carrying on despite the frequent lapses of mankind.

It is significant here to note that both The Hague Tribunal and the Permanent Court of International Justice are organisations which, as Leon Bourgeois pointed out at the second meeting of the Council of the League of Nations, the United States has consistently advocated. As early as 1907, during a Republican Administration, the United States suggested the desirability of establishing both the court of law and the court of arbitration. Here once more, therefore, when and if Senator Harding should ever set forth "hopefully" to "approach the nations of Europe and the earth," he possibly would not feel impelled to discard these international courts to the formation of which the leaders of his own party have contributed so notably.

It is thus plain that neither in the essential purpose of the League, which is the prevention of wars, nor in one part at least of its essential machinery, which consists of courts of international justice and of arbitration, is there any authentic difference of opinion.

Where, then, does the difference lie? Cox and Roosevelt are the frank advocates of the League substantially as it stands, while Harding and Coolidge have chosen to carry the ensign of opposition. What is the substance of disagreement?

THE DISPUTE IN AMERICA

It is important. It centers around the lawmaking and executive branches of the League. Our own days of constitution making illuminate the situation.

In creating this American nation the representatives of the thirteen original colonies set up executive, legislative and judicial branches. The Permanent Court of International Justice which Elihu Root, with a distinguished company of jurists from other nations, has designed for the League of Nations has been correctly compared with our Supreme Court. Without a Congress to make laws, however, the Supreme Court of the United States would have had no law to interpret or to construe. Without an administrative branch to enforce its decrees the Supreme Court would have been a foolish gesture in a disorganised land.

More than once in our history clashes of national interest have threatened to bring our high court into contempt. Was it not Andrew Jackson who said in effect: "John Marshall has made the decision. Now let him enforce it." The slow and difficult growth of nationality on this continent in time brought unity and strength, but from the period when the separate and jealous gave their reluctant adhesion to the Constitution of the United States the way for the development of the nation had been prepared. So is it with the League of Nations. The Permanent Court of International Justice will be nothing without the assembly of nations to make international law. But it is that assembly which the Republicans are as reluctant to join as Rhode Island, to cite only one State, was averse to becoming a part of the American Union.

THE RESERVATIONS

To understand lucidly the ground of the Republican opposition to the League of Nations it is desirable to recall the reserva-

Chinese Students On S.S. Nanking

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: As a continuation of the brief report sent from Yokohama, we shall feel very much obliged for the insertion of these lines in your valuable paper. Since leaving Yokohama in the morning of September 7 the sea has been rough and the worst part occasioned in the afternoon of last Sunday when the angry waves went mountain high and the ship tossed to an angle of some thirty degrees. Quite a number of the passengers fell victims of seasickness and life on board immediately seemed dreadful. Still it was fortunate that we passed the outer circle of a typhoon, thereby escaping much more terrible experience. The thought is expressed that this batch of students will be able to steer through the tempestuous sea of life and come out a strong crew for the State.

At first we intended to arrange an elaborate program for the enjoyment of all on board throughout the voyage, but the plan was upset by the rough sea and the monotonous life was not broken until one evening when the stewards entertained us with some Chinese plays. It was just marvelous to see that these uneducated people possess such capabilities and it was more so to learn that they raised among themselves a big sum of money for the purchase of clothing and other equipment for this purpose. To express our appreciation of their spirit, we have decided to send them a gift. On Thursday evening the Tsing Hua party gave a splendid social for the entertainment of all the persons on board. The Social Committee of the non-Tsing-Hua students is busily engaged in the effort to relieve the monotonous life at sea with games, concerts, and other social affairs.

We reached Honolulu this morning at six o'clock and were warmly received by representatives of the Chinese Community, happily entertained and shown round the famous places. We all enjoyed our short visit there and are grateful to our fellow citizens for their cordial welcome.—Yours truly,

CHINESE STUDENTS ON NANKING.

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper (Registered Trade Mark) is a unique preparation and has the recommendation of leading sanitary authorities, architects, and decorators everywhere.

Avoid disappointment by refusing substitutes which do not possess its advantages.

The Rhyming Optimist

BY ALINE MICHAELIS

Sometimes you say: "I'm petered out; my work is on the bum. I haven't got a bit of doubt butw hat most any other scout could simply make things hum. I think I'll rest about a year, or, maybe, even more. Nobody needs me over here; I'd not be missed at all, I fear, in one year or a score. However, just about that time, some friend may amble by and tell you: "Bo, you're doing prime." says, then the joy-bells start to chime, the clouds desert your sky, "Your work." he says, "is going good, the best it's ever been." This cheers you more than drink food; it puts you in a merry mood and makes you dance and grin. It isn't just what you can do that makes an easy road, but having folks believe in you, that surely helps to put things through and lightens every load. When someone puts his faith on you, you cannot run away; you feel that you must play true blue and give the best that you can do for his sake day by day. So when you think you're petered out, and only wish to quit, just see how soon you right-about when you are cornered by a scout who says you've mad a hit. When folks are for you very strong, you cannot turn them down; you put more pep into your song so you can jolly 'em along, and then do things up brown.

Little Bobbie And His Pa

Pa was reeding a vacashun Gide last nite & Ma was listening to the fonygraft. Wife, sed Pa to Ma, if you will tie a can to that record for a minnit, sed Pa, I will reed sumthing to you wich will be vary inter-esting, I think.

So Ma shut off the fony-graft & Pa red out loud, sumuthing like this:

Here in the mountings, among the fethery ferms & the slite, willowy white birches that line the per-ing streem, man may lay aside them petty cares wich tortures the soul & beecum for the time beeing a part of the Great outdoors. How is that for high? sed Pa.

I do not trust them vacashun Gides, sed Ma. They are like candy-dates, they promise much & give littel.

This is a different kind of book, though, sed Pa. It is on the levvel. I wud like to try out sum of them trout ---- sed Pa, if I cud evver git the time to take a vacashun.

Take the time, why doant you? sed Ma. The wurld wud go on jest the saim if you had to pass away.

Maybe it wud, at that, sed Pa, but I shuddeer to think what a sad old wurld it wud be after I have went, sed Pa.

But yure grate brane needs a rest, sed Ma. You must remember that. What if it shud snap under the strane of yure snap job, sed Ma.

My what? sed Pa.

The soft snap you call yure work, sed Ma. Yure yeerly vacashun wich lasts 365 days per Annium, sed Ma.

Well, well, sed Pa. What do you know about that? I have a noshun for to brissel up at that reemark. sed Pa.

Brissel up if you want to, sed Ma. The truth will preevail, sed Ma. Truth is mitey.

Truth is mitey & you are flitey, sad Pa. Surely you do not mean that you think my work is essy!

WHEN KIDNEYS FEEL LIKE LUMPS OF LEAD

Act quickly! Don't wait for Bright's Disease, Dropsy, High Blood Pressure, Hardened Arteries, etc., says high medical authority. Gives prescriptions.

To get rid of uric acid or similar substances in the blood, and to thoroughly flush out the kidneys, you must drink a strongly alkaline water. I know of no other possible way, since uric acid is no different from other acids in that it is quickly neutralised by an alkaline liquid. This, of course is elementary chemistry. Anyone can prove for himself how totally unnecessary is the suffering from backache and all the other distress signals of kidney trouble. All you need is a compound of strongly alkaline mineral elements such as magnesium, lithium, and other uric acid solvents. The refined Alkia Saltrates compound, a few ounces of which can be supplied at little cost by any chemist, will give you the right combination of alkaline ingredients already compounded in just the correct proportions. Dissolve a level teaspoonful of this powder in a tumbler of water and drink daily, or it may be dissolved in your tea, coffee, or other beverages. It has no objectionable bitter, salty, sour, or other unpleasant taste, and is widely prescribed by medical men. This alkaline water soothes cleanses, and sweetens the stomach, kidneys, liver, and intestines, but never weakens or irritates them, as strong salts or other drastic drugs are likely to. The beneficial effects are plainly noticeable within an hour or two, and a week's treatment is usually sufficient for the average case.

NOTE.—We are informed that Messrs. A. S. Watson & Co. of 16 Nanking Road, Shanghai, stock a specially high grade of Alkia Saltrates and are in a position to supply this remarkable compound at a very low cost.

League As A Campaign Issue, Reduced To Plain Words

tions which Senator Lodge finally formulated.

The first reservation affected Article I. of the covenant of the League of Nations. Among other things Article I. provides that any member accepting the covenant may withdraw after giving two years' notice of its intention and after having fulfilled its obligations to the League. The Lodge reservation said in substance that the United States could withdraw whenever we jolly well pleased. More formally, it was asserted that the United States would be the sole judge as to whether its obligations had been fulfilled, and that this nation could withdraw whenever by concurrent resolution if Congress so ordered. The language of the reservation was swaggering, but Mr. Lodge was probably more interested in irritating President Wilson than in offending the nations of the world. At any rate, the reservation was not of vast importance, as was proved by the fact that Senator Hitchcock brought in a substitute which would have given any nation the privilege of being the sole judge of whether its obligations to the League had been performed. It is safe to say, therefore, that Reservation No. 1 is not of overwhelming importance. Any group of men half willing to compose their difference could have compromised that.

The second reservation was more difficult to agree on. It dealt with Article X. Under this article members of the League "undertake to respect and preserve against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the League." The Lodge reservation announced that the United States assumed no such obligation unless in the particular instance Congress authorised the specific action to be taken.

The opposition to Article X. is to be found in part in the Irish question. Adherents of Irish independence claimed that Article X. might be used to thwart the aspirations of the Irish Republic. On the matter of sympathy of Ireland the Democrats are certainly not less keen than are the Republicans, despite the Gaelic vote in Boston. In part also it was grounded in the fact that a Republican Congress and a Democratic President were arrayed in bitter hostility. If Congress and President had been of the same party the question would probably not have arisen. For the Constitution provides that Congress has the power to declare war, and for us the Constitution is superior to any treaty or covenant. But as the question has now been taken to the country the reservation concerning Article X. may be accepted as fundamental of the difference between the parties. Is the United States willing to agree to respect the integrity of other members of the League? The is the residuum of the reservation. That is the question which Senator Harding would have to answer if and when he should hopefully approach the nations of Europe and of the earth, proposing a new understanding among mankind.

MANDATES EASILY AVOIDED

The next reservation simply stated that the United States would accept no mandate unless by the action of Congress. That reservation, however, was not vital to our acceptance of the League. Not all the members of the League have been burdened with the rsponsibility of acting as mandataries for backward nations. The United States could refuse any such responsibility and still be a member of the League in good standing. We might be accused of selfishness, but of little worse. The reservation is no part of the solemn referendum in which we are engaged.

Reservation No. 4 is, in contrast, of great importance. It asserts that the United States is the sole judge of what are its domestic questions. Finland asserts that the Aaland Islands case is for it a domestic question, but without the intervention of the Council of the League of Nations even now Finland and Sweden might have been at war. The covenant of the League of Nations proposes that the Permanent Court of International Justice be the authorised agency to separate domestic and national questions. The mood of insisting that the United States be the sole arbiter of the nature of questions in which it may become involved is the mood of the War Lord of Germany. If the Lodge reservation on this point were the settled policy of the United States, then it would be impossible to arbitrate, for example, any difference with Japan. That position might accord with the temper of such an irreconcilable as Senator Johnson, but it has scarcely been that of Republicans such as John Hay, Elihu Root and William Howard Taft, who have had so important a part in the creation of the world's agencies for international arbitration. None the less, that is one of the essential aspects of the real question which must be voted on in November.

Reservation No. 6 was written in the same mood, although it announced the Republican unwillingness to submit to arbitration or inquiry any question connected with the Monroe Doctrine. This reservation, was, albeit, little more than swashbucking since Article XXI. of the covenant itself had especially recognised the Monroe Doctrine. Reservation No. 6 merely declared truculently what the covenant had in more gracious language recorded as a matter of voluntary agreement. The Monroe Doctrine emphatically has no place in the League issue of the present campaign.

The remainder of the fourteen reservations, with one or two exceptions which will be noted, announce that the United States will not do this or that until Congress authorises the particular action. In most of the cases the net result of the reservations seems to be international advertisement of the hostility of a Republican Senate toward a Democratic President. By no conceivable trick of political legerdemain could many of these become a valid part of the question submitted to the voters. Conflict between executive and legislature is common enough in this country. Theodore Roosevelt had troubles in plenty with a Senate of his own party. But, after all, these differences have little to do with the League of Nations.

REFLECTIONS OF PREJUDICES

Other reservations of significance arose from the fact that Canada and other self-governing dominions of the British Empire received votes in the assembly of the League of Nations. Those reservations, too were reflections of the Irish question. The difference between the national status of Cuba and of South Africa is slight. The connection between Cuba and the United States is probably as close as that which links Great Britain and Australia. The truth is that the great dominions are independent nations, and the League did no more than give formal recognition to political reality. Senator Harding will certainly discover this if he ever gets the chance hopefully to approach the nations of Europe and the earth. He will learn that Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India and Canada are actually nations of the earth, and upon inquiry he may be informed that each took a fighting part in the World War comparable at least to that of many nations whose independence has not been challenged by an American Senate.

FEW REAL DIFFERENCES

The reservations, when all is said, did little to the actual structure of the League. They voiced Senatorial hostility to the President and Irish hostility toward England. Little real criticism, however, was directed at the League itself.

The purpose of the League, the prevention of future wars, was certainly not challenged.

The reduction of national armaments, so essential an element in any program of permanent world peace, found not much genuine opposition, even though Reservation 10 did assert that the United States would not limit its fighting resources until Congress so willed.

No deep-seated opposition to international arbitration was voiced, even though the privilege of deciding what was domestic and what was international was rather boisterously reserved for the United States.

The principle of administering colonies for the sake of the people who live in them was not fought despite the unwillingness of the Congress to accept a mandate over any undeveloped country.

The Permanent Court was accepted without challenge.

The publication and the registration of treaties passed without reservation.

If the Irish question and the quarrel of the Senate with the Presidency, the latter surely not an international question, were eliminated, not much of substance would be left to the reservations.

None the less, it is still true that the League of Nations is the dividing line between Democrats and Republicans. Governor Cox has espoused the existing League with any changes which may be found necessary to protect the true interests of the United States. Senator Harding is against the existing League, but he will hopefully seek a substitute for that League which twenty-nine nations have already ratified and to the elaboration of the machinery of which Elihu Root has contributed so signally.

Whatever the verdict of November, the League is already a part of the world's resources for peace and order and justice. It will be changed undoubtedly. Franklin Roosevelt pointed out the fact that eighteen times the American Constitution had been changed by amendment and that the nineteenth change was impending. Amendment of the covenant, as of every other document written by men's hands, is natural and the sign of growth. It would not be impossible now to devise constructive amendments to the convenant, although, be it admitted, they were not included in the Senate's reservations. That does not matter. The important thing is that the agreement of nations which Sir Edward Grey so vainly sought on July 31, 1914, is already at hand, and that regardless of the direction of the political tide in the United States there need never again come such a catastrophe as overwhelmed the world six years ago.

Siccawei Weather Reports

11.—Most of the Chinese telegrams are probably stopped by the Feast. Meanwhile a typhoon appears off East Luzon, about 1st 15°, long 130°: it advances to north-West and begins to affect the pressure and the wind at the Loochoos. Regular monsoon to the South of Shantung, Southerly breezes in the North. Fine weather here and at Formosa.

12.—Misty and cloudy, but still fine morning. The breeze has shifted back to north. The pressure continue to decrease below the average.

Peking Notes

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, October 9.—Mr. J. D. C. Rodgers, formerly third Secretary of the American Legation here, later secretary to the Legation at Bangkok, Siam, has been transferred from that place to London, where he will act as Second Secretary to the Embassy there.

The American Legation has received a report from the Consul-General at Canton stating that General Mo Yung-hsien's position there is so weak that not even the Chief of Police will acknowledge his authority. Mo is holding his ground with eight thousand soldiers in Canton, and awaiting the arrival of reinforcements of Kwangsi troops.

Mr. J. J. Underwood, special correspondent of the Seattle Times, and special representative of the Department of Interior at Washington to make investigation of shipping problems in the Far East, has arrived in Peking. Mr. Underwood came out to Tokio on the Transport Matawaska, making investigations in the Philippines on the way. After spending several days in Peking he will continue his tour to Shanghai, and after collecting data in that port will take passage for home.

Mr. Chang I-bah, Vice-Minister of Justice who was appointed to take over the Russian Courts in Kirin and Heilungkiang, has arrived in Harbin where he has been co-operating in this task with the local Taoyin and Diplomatic Commissioner. When he has completed his task at Harbin he will proceed to Heilungkiang.

Mr. Kang Yeu-wei, the well-known Reformer, has circulated a letter to the Government and other public bodies advocating that China should immediately conclude a treaty and exchange diplomatic representatives with Germany. He says that a country must maintain her independence and that China should fear no country and rely on no Power in her diplomatic dealings. Germany is a country most advanced in modern science and an old friend of this country. As Japan has already resumed trade relations and exchange representatives with Germany and begun to make use of her talents China should not hesitate to do the same thing, especially as she has established new relations with such countries as Bolivia, Sweden, Norway and Poland.

The Tokio Government has lodged a protest over the burning of the Hungchun Consulate by bandits with the Charge D'Affaires at Tokio while the Japanese Consul at Hungchun has requested the local authorities to allow Japanese troops to be quartered there permanently and suppress bandits freely. Without waiting for reply, large detachments of Japanese soldiers and police have been sent there to take free action. On China's side, as a result of the investigation of Taoyin Tao, the Hungchun magistrate has been dismissed and at the same time the War Ministry has ordered Regimental Commander Mang at Yienchi to despatch one battalion to quell the bandits. As many of those who attacked the Japanese Consulate were Koreans and as they have fled, suppression is out of the question.

ITALY A VICTOR FINANCIALLY BY ALBANIA POLICY

Withdrawal Of Troops Saves Government 70,000,000 Francs A Month

AVALLONA GARRISON WEAK

Socialists Prevented Sending Help, So Occupation Meant Waste Of Life

Rome, August 6.—Whether the withdrawal of all troops from Avallona, in Albania, was a political mistake only the politicians can judge, but financially it was the case of getting rid of a bad bargain. It will mean the saving of 70,000,000 francs a month, as since the armistice Italy has been spending that amount every month to improve the roads and houses in the section of Albania she has occupied since 1914.

When, after the recent rebel up-rising in that unsettled country, Italy was treated as a usurper the Premier decided that, since the Italian protectorate was obnoxious to the Albanians now in power, it was wise to withdraw all troops and let the Albanians improve thier own country with Albanian money. Albanians can now fight their own battles. It would have been impossible to hold Avallona without troops, and as the Socialist members of the Railway and Seamen's Union refused to permit soldiers to leave Italy for Albania, naturally it would have been foolhardy to permit the troops until recently in Albania to be massacred. Probably the Albanian town of Avallona was necessary for Italy during the war, but holding it at present would mean a useless waste of life.

COUNTRY IN DISORDER

When a proper Albanian government is able to unite the country the republic may amount to something, but at present there is nothing which could be called order in any part of the country.

Whether Premier Giolitti will follow a similar policy in regard to Tripolitania no one at present can say. This act, judged from a financial standpoint, would be a mistake, as Tripoli has a great future when it is well organised.

Tripoli would become a good source of revenue if internal peace could be achieved. Under Turkish rule it was only a small, undeveloped colony, but now that Italian capital has been invested it offers wonderful possibilities if the natives only could be satisfied. Unfortunately Italy has treated them too well, a system which they do not understand. They would like complete home rule, by which the Arabs would take over the industries which have been pulsed into life by Italian capitalists.

For instance, the sponge industry is now developing, and last year sponges valued at 2,000,000 francs were taken from the waters of Tripoli and Cirenaica. Considering that the total sponge production of the Mediterranean Sea is valued at about 10,000,000 francs, and that of the entire world at 140,000,000 francs, it shows what progress this industry has made in the nine years under Italian rule.

These "Libian" sponges, as they are called, are varied in shape and compact in texture, and of very good quality.

TUNNY INDUSTRY IMPROVES

Another industry which has just got on its feet is tunny fishing, which also is backed by Italian financiers. The last season probably has been the most successful one in the history of this industry, owing to the methods used in unloading and re-shipping the fish. Three depots have now been opened, and each has its fishing fleet.

Of course the European tunny is never as large as those caught off the Pacific Coast of the United States, where the usual size is ten feet and the weight 1,000 pounds. The Libian tunny is generally six feet in length and weighs about 600 pounds. In old Roman times tunny generally was salted as soon as caught and then brought to Rome. Now the tunny is kept in ice and sold in Rome in a fresh state unlike the Sicilian tunny, which is always cured in oil and sent abroad. If Tripoli were turned over to the Arabs this industry would be lost to Italy, as naturally the boats and warehouses would be taken over by the Arab sailors, now employed by the Italian company, although its directors are Arabs.

OIL A POSSIBILITY

Besides these industries there is now a possibility that petroleum will be found; in fact, from experiments undertaken in a small way, it is believed that an equal if not a greater quantity will be found than in Egypt, where 263,000 tons was produced in 1918. As the soil in certain parts of Libia is similar to that district in Egypt, where the oil wells were discovered, and as the soundings made lead experts to think that there is a good supply of oil under the soil of Tripolitania, there is now a project to start work in the valley of Gefara, north of Garian.

In Cirenaica, south of Gebel Aedar, oil shafts have been sunk, but money is lacking, owing to the unsettled state of the country. In an effort to straighten out matters care has been taken in the selection of the new civil Governor. The choice has fallen on Commendators Mercatelli, formerly Italy's diplomatic agent to the Republic of Georgia, a man with a great deal of experience and quite different from his predecessor, who managed to rub the Arabs the wrong way. Although it was during his term that they were given a constitution, with a separate Parliament, he muddled things so that even with all these extraordinary concessions, the Arabs are more dissatisfied than before.

Probably they misunderstood the Italian policy of treating them as brothers. Whatever the reason, the situation in Tripolitania is a delicate one. There are two parties—those who side with the Italians, but who have a grievance of some sort, and the majority, who side with the Rebel chief Rawadan Scetini, who calls himself King of Misurata.

Matters, while not serious, might become so were things allowed to drift along indifferently. For example, although the Arabs are supposed to have a constitution, no effort has been made to put it into force. The great drawback, from an Italian point of view, has been the small garrison allowed for the defense of the colony. During the war, when Rawadan Scetini seized the Oasis of Misurata and proclaimed himself King and owner of the treasure hidden there by the Turks when they left in 1912, there were not enough soldiers to oust him, and there he remains today. What they have been unable to do by force the authorities have tried to accomplish by arbitration, but the rebel is obdurate. Still, if the present Governor is a clever man matters may be smoothed out and conditions in the colony improved.

Raisin Queen Issuing Invitations To Fruit Fiesta

Miss Violet Oliver, celebrated Los Angeles beauty, photographed in New York, where she presented Mayor Hylan with an invitation to attend the annual fruit fiesta in California. Miss Oliver began her tour of the country some time ago, and to date has presented invitations to the raisin debauch to twenty-seven governors and forty-seven mayors. She is just eighteen years old and attributes her beauty to her life-long habit of eating raisins incessantly, no matter where she is.
